Florence, 13th Germinal. (April 3.)

Morati, Commander in Chief, to the Prefect Villamary Government of Tuscany.

Citizen Agar is charged to present to you gentlemen, a copy of the Treaty of Peace, concluded at Luneville by the ministers plenipotentiary of the French Republic, and his majesty the emperor, king of Bohemia and Hungary, stipulating at the same time in his name, and in the name of the Germanic body, I announce to you that the treaty has been ratified.

With respect to the 5th article, the Grand Duchy of Tuscany, and part of the 6th which depends on it, I have by the infant Duke of Parma: inform the Tuscans by proclamation, that a prince of the House of Spain, the ally of the French Republic, comes among them accompanied by the blessings of peace.

Now, that the fate of this country is decided all animosity must cease, and the pall will be forgotten, which has been blended in the sentiments that you owe to your country and to the government, which causes its happiness.

I expect from your cares gentlemen, this happy result—employ to obtain it all the influence your personal characters, your services and the authority with which you are invested can give you. You will be this solemn proof the confidence which I have repeled in you, and you will acquire a title to the good will of your new prince.

I have the honour to salute you,

(Signed) J. MURAT.

Hamburgh, April 13.

Advices from Sweden announce the appointments of Count de Fersen, Grand Marshal; M. de Zibeth, Secretary of State; and M. de Ehrenchun, Ambassador to Paris.

LONDON, April 23.

The negociation, or rather the communication, with France is still continued—though nothing decisive can be expected until the effect of the expedition to Egypt be known, and the real views and projects of the new Russian emperor, Alexander, be ascertained.

Whether the Chief Consul will be disposed to sacrifice the possession of Egypt we know not—it matters not whether he was at first driven by the then rulers of France, jealous of his talents and views, to attempt a conquest, of the Ottoman, which they doubted; or that it was a favorite project of his own; it is clear, that it is a position to which he attaches much importance, and will be difficult to give it up, unless the plague, of which, by his intercepted letter, he appears so have much dread, or the British under Sir Ralph Abercrombie, shall render it a difficulty of negociating on the subject.

It is said that M. Otto has had fresh instructions on the subject of negociation.

Lord St. Helens will immediately leave England as our ambassador to the court of St. Petersburgh where, it is believed his profound talents and conciliatory manner will make the wished for impression on the mind of the new emperor. For this judicious appointment, and at this very critical period too, when Buonaparte will use his utmost exertions to gain an ascendancy in the cabinet of Russia, Mr. Addington and his friends are certainly entitled to the highest encomiums. Lord St. Helens merits as a negociator are too well known, and too generally approved, to require our commendation.

April 27.

A flag of truce sailed on Friday for Calais with Mr. Mallet, Mr. Otto's messenger, carrying dispatches to P. ance, which, we believe, put an end to the negociation for the present. The Clef du Cabinet says France will no longer be the dupe of the English overtures of peace.

The Prussians have taken quiet possession of Hanover, and have dismissed much of the Hanoverian troops, the greatest part of whom have enlisted into the Prussian service. It appears also certain that the Prussians have that up the Ems, the Weser and Elbe; a circumstance which may explain the non-arrival of the Hamburg vessels though the wind has been so fair.
