CAROLINE.

BY THOMAS CAMPBELL.

Gem of the crimson colour'd Even,
Companion of retiring Day,
Why at the closing gates of Heaven,
Beloved Star, dost thou delay?

So fair thy pensive Beauty burns,
When soft the tear of Twilight flows;
So due thy plighted step returns,
To Chambers brighter than the rose.

To peace, to pleasure, and to love,
So kind a star thou seem'st to be,
Sure some enamoured Orb above,
Descends, and burns to meet with thee!

Thine is the breathing, blushing hour,
When all unheav'nly passions fly,
Chas'd by the soul subduing pow'r
Of love's delicious ecstacy!

O, sacred to the fall of Day,
Queen of propitious stars, appear,
And early rise, and long d'lay,
When CAROLINE herself is here!

Shine on her chosen green resort,
Whose trees the sunward summit crown,
And wanton flowers that well may court
An angel's feet to tread them down!

Shine on her sweetly scented road,
Thou star of ev'ning's purple dome,
That lead'st the nightingale abroad
And guid'st the pilgrim to his home!

Shine where my charmer's sweeter breath
Embalms thy soft exhaling dew—
Where dying winds a sigh bequeath,
To kiss the cheek of rosy hue;

Where, winnow'd by the gentle air,
Her silken tresses darkly flow,
And fall upon her brow so fair,
Like shadows on the mountain snow!

Thus, ever thus, at day's decline
In converse sweet to wander far,
Oh, bring with thee my Caroline—
And thou shalt be my ruling Star!

BOSTON, Nov. 2.

TRIBUTE OF GRATITUDE.

Friday last, being the birth day of the Honorable JOHN ADAMS, was celebrated at Quincey, with every demonstration of veneration and love for that distinguished Statesman.

An elegant entertainment was given on the occasion, by a number of gentlemen of that, and the neighbouring towns. The company assembled at an early hour, and the hon. Richard Cranch Esq. was unanimously called to the chair, in a manner, which did not admit of persistence in refusal on his part.

At half past twelve o'clock, the company preceded by the Chairman and Committee of arrangement, waited on Mr. Adams, and presented the following address:

To the Hon. JOHN ADAMS.

YOUR neighbors and friends, assembled to celebrate the anniversary of your natal day, beg leave to approach you with sincere congratulations upon the pleasing occasion.

Be assured, sir, that no lapse of time can abate our respect and gratitude for your long, laborious, and faithful public services, or diminish our affectionate attachment to your person and character. An attachment founded in the contemplation of virtues, which the splendour of office, and the allurements of power, could never contaminate—and which the shades of retirement cannot obscure.

We have seen you, sir, the early asserter of the rights of your countrymen, while we were yet a part of the British empire; and one of the foremost in the dangers which attended the contest that ended in our separation from Great Britain. Your animating and prudent counsels, through this eventful period, cheered despondence, and checked temerity.

The talents which suggested the most suitable measures, with regard to foreign relations, during our revolutionary war, were equally conspicuous in their successful execution. And diplomatic eminence attended the exertions of enlightened patriotism.

In the negotiations which secured our Independence, Territory, Navigation and Fisheries, were displayed amid difficulties and risk insuperable to common minds, an intelligence, an integrity and a firmness, which place Adams and Jay among the few, who in different ages, from principle alone, have been willing to devote themselves for their country.

The adoption of the present National Government, called to office our first citizens. Your impartial and decisive conduct for eight years as Vice President of the United States, and President of the Senate, greatly assisted the organization of the system, and gave efficiency to its operations.

Soon after your illustrious predecessor had expressed his determination to retire from the head of the Government, the political clouds began to thicken anew. Devoted to your country, and true to its interests, you did not hesitate undertaking the arduous task to which its suffrages then invited you.

The crisis was indeed important. We were threatened from without, and from within. Much was required to rouse spirit, and to guide opinion—to repel aggression, and to regulate resentment. With one hand you ably directed all the manly energies of our country, and magnanimously wielded in the other the olive branch of peace.

The administration of the American Government for twelve years, has commanded the admiration of the virtuous and the wise of every nation. Future Statesmen will learn, from the example of Washington and Adams, that to forego contemporary applause and apparent temporary advantages, for the establishment of beneficial principles, is the true way to solid fame.

We trust you will pardon us, sir, for this short recapitulation. The sentiments we have expressed were awakened by the occasion. They come from the heart, and speak its feelings.

While we can view with so much satisfaction the past affairs of our country; considering the fluctuation of human events, and the various passions which distract mankind, we cannot look to the future but with anxious apprehensions. You, sir, will join us in the prayer, that the people of the United States, to latest time, may so conduct, as to meet the favor of HIM, in whose hands are the destinies of nations, as well as of individuals.

To that BEING we offer our fervent supplications for your personal and domestic happiness—that the period may be far distant, which shall close your useful and honorable life—and when the hour of separation from mortal scenes shall at length arrive, that your transition to a brighter world may be easy and serene.

October 30th, 1801.

To which Mr. ADAMS was pleased to reply.

My Neighbours and Friends.

HAVING every reason to believe, with full assurance, the sincerity of your declaration, that this obliging compliment comes from the heart; it is impossible for me to receive it, without correspondent sentiments of gratitude and friendship.

Minds, well informed, in the state of the nation and its public affairs, under every form of Government, and in every stage of society, civilized or savage, can seldom look to the future without anxious apprehensions. Anxiety for the public, under Governments like ours, is a duty, and the cultivation of it a virtue, the want of which in sufficient degrees, in the most impartial and disinterested citizens, constitutes the greatest danger. Be assured, Gentlemen, that I largely participate in your solicitude: For who can navigate a tempestuous ocean without a share of it.

Most cordially do I unite in your supplication, that the people of the United States, to latest time, may so conduct, as to meet the favour of HIM, in whose hands are the destinies of nations, as well as individuals.

May your personal and domestic happiness, as well as your public Rights and Liberties, be ever precious in his sight.

JOHN ADAMS.

Quincey, Oct. 30, 1801.

The scene was affecting. It was not the servile adulation of sycophants at the shrine of power; but the spontaneous offering of grateful minds to merit in retirement.

The company returned to their room, and after dinner, the following toasts were given.

TOASTS.

1st. THE DAY:
"Which gave the world a Statesman.

2d. JOHN ADAMS:
"His nature is too noble for this world;
He would not flatter Neptune for his trident,
Or Jove, for his power to thunder;
What his breast forges, that he will utter."

3d. The memory of WASHINGTON:
"While time endures, his name shall ever bloom,
And wreaths unfading flourish round his tomb."

4th. The Washington and Adams Administrations.
"How blessings brighten, as they take their flight?"

5th. Our Country:
"Which tho' now darkened by a transient cloud,
Is doom'd we trust, to be the radiant throne
Of settled liberty, and stedfast faith."

6th. The Constituted Authorities of the United States:
"Still may they prove the bulwark of our laws,
And ever keep at heart their country's good!"

7th. The American Navy:
"——It much imports us, 'tis our all,
To keep our trade intire; intire the force,
And honour of our fleets; o'er that to watch,
Even with a hand severe, and jealous eye."

8th. The Military Establishments of the United States:
"——Ever may they guard their country's rights,
Ever defend them with undaunted hearts.',

9th. Unanimity and energy to the friends of good government.
"The more the bold, the bustling, and the bad,
Press to usurp the reigns of power, the more
Behoves it virtue, with indignant zeal,
To check their combination."

10th. The Judiciary of the U. States:
"————The justice, that delights
To dare the keenest eye of open day."

11th. The Clergy:
"Must stand acknowledged, while the world shall stand,
The most important and effectual guard,
Support and ornament of virtue's cause."

12th. The moral, religious, and literary Institutions of our country:
"Weigh well the powers of simple piety!
Make it the key-stone in thy arch of virtue,
And it will keep that graceful fabric firm,
Tho' all the storms of fortune burst upon it."

13th. Agriculture, Commerce, and Manufactures:
"——————We see our plains
Unbounded waving with the gifts of harvest;
Our seas with commerce throng'd, our busy ports
With cheerful toil."

VOLUNTEERS.

After the Chairman had retired,

Judge CRANCH:—May the evening of his life be calm and serene, as the morning and noon have been active and useful.

GOV. STRONG:—May Massachusetts continue to support the man, who supports good principles; and may his administration be as free from censure as it is from faults.

The Legislature of Massachusetts:—May it merit the esteem and admiration, of the virtuous and wise, by the purity of its principles, and the wisdom of its laws.

The memory of Gov. SUMNER:—Embalmed by the recollection of his virtues; may it excite an emulation of them in all his successors.

May Americans ever bear in mind, that in politics, as in architecture, symmetry is indispensible, and in every structure, to equalize, is to demolish.

JOHN JAY:—May his name be ever as dear to his country, as his labours in her cause have been disinterested and faithful.

The Senate of the United States: may it be a bulwark against all encroachments upon the Constitution.

The Rulers of our land: May they have wisdom to discern our interests, and christian principles to inspire us with confidence.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

THE period is approaching when, according to the original and indispensable terms of The NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER, each subscriber will be required to pay Five Dollars in advance for his second year. As the chief support of the paper depends upon subscriptions, it is confidently hoped that subscribers will be punctual in their remittances, which may be made in any Bank Paper, or in Gold, the postage being paid.

A considerable number of subscribers of respectability, as far as the Editor is acquainted with their characters, have requested papers, which have been accordingly forwarded, under the unequivocal engagement to render immediate payment. This, in many cases, has not been done. Unless payment be soon made a discontinuance of their papers will be unavoidable.

In order that each Subscriber may be informed in time duly to make remittances the period of payment and the sum required to be paid will be stated on his Paper, in general some time before hand. After such notice, immediate payment will be expected, nor will any subscriber, it is hoped, take offence at a discontinuance of his paper in case payment is not made, as the heavy expences attending a Newspaper cannot be defrayed without the regular remittances of subscriptions.

Some misconception of the provisions of the post-office law existing, the Editor informs his subscribers, that the mode of stating his accounts was not adopted, until he had obtained the approbation of the Post Master General. On examination it will be seen, that the existing law does not, though the previous law did, prohibit such statement.

DAVID JACKSON,

DRUGGIST AND APOTHECARY.

INFORMS his friends and the public, that he has removed from Chesnut, to No. 26, south Third-street, directly opposite the Post-Office, where he is opening a general assortment of genuine Drugs and Medicines, Surgeons' Instruments, Painters' Colours, and Patent Medicines of every description. Orders of Physicians and country Merchants executed with punctuality and care, and upon the most advantageous terms.

The Subscribers

HAVING on hand a number of house frames of different dimensions, also, a large quantity of the various kinds of lumber requisite for building, and having made such arrangements as will ensure a constant supply thereof, and enable them to sell the same on very advantageous and moderate terms to the purchasers, hereby give notice, that on application, accompanied by a memorandum or bill of the frames or lumber wanted, they will cause the same to be delivered as soon as may be, at any of the wharves in the city of Washington, George-Town or Alexandria. The circumstances under which the subscribers enter into this business, authorize an assurance that the strictest punctuality in their engagements may be relied on. They are therefore induced to believe, that many persons who are engaged in building, or who may intend to build, will find a great convenience and advantage in making timely application, and being thus supplied with the whole of the lumber necessary for their buildings by the time it may be wanted for use.
