U.S. FINDS ANOTHER ERROR IN VIETNAM SERVICE DEAD

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—The Pentagon today reported another case of mistaken identity among the remains of 12 men handed over by the Vietnamese Government as war casualties.

Identification experts have discovered that remains listed by the Vietnamese as Cpt. Lawrence H. Golberg of the Air Force, of Cloquet, Minn., were actually those of Lieut. Patrick E. Wynne of Satellite Beach, Fla.

Lieutenant Wynne was a crewman on an F-4C Phantom jet flown by Captain Golberg when the plane was shot down on Aug. 8, 1966. Both men were listed as missing in action. Lieutenant Wynne's status was changed on May 28, 1974, to presumed dead.

At the same time, the Pentagon said the American whose name was reported yesterday by President Carter as having been mistakenly linked with the remains of a Vietnamese was Maj. Curtis E. Eaton of the Air Force, of Wakefield, R.I. Major Eaton was pilot of an F-105 fighter bomber when he was shot down Aug. 4, 1966. He has been listed as missing in action.

The Pentagon said that the remains of the 10 others had been confirmed as originally identified. They were: Maj. Elwyn R. Capling of Detroit; Maj. James H. Metz of Poplar Bluff, Mo.; Capt. Samuel E. Waters Jr. of Mocksville, N.C.; Lieut. Stephen W. Diamond of Roslyn Heights, L.I.; and Lieut. Bruce C. Ducat of Bethesda, Md., all of the Air Force.

Also Lieut. William M. Roark of Bellvue Sarpy, Neb.; Lieut. Comdr. Thomas Kolstad of Parkville, Minn.; Lieut. (j.g.) William B. Klenert of Bellmore, L.I.; Lieut. Comdr. Roy H. Bowling of San Bernardino, Calif.; and Lieut. Comdr. Guy D. Johnson of Seattle, all of the Navy.

The mother of Lieutenant Roark, Mrs. Frank Roark in Omaha, said yesterday that a Navy spokesman had called her from Washington to say that her son's remains had been misidentified. The Navy later explained that the call had been about other remains and she had apparently become confused.

IDENTIFICATION IN ERROR ON BODY RETURNED BY HANOI

Special to The New York Times

OMAHA, March 23—An Omaha woman was told by the Navy today that a mistake had been made and that her son's remains had not been brought back from Vietnam.

"There was a mistake made in the identification by the Vietnamese," said Mrs. Frank Roark, her voice breaking. "So I won't have anything."

Lieut. William Roark of the Navy was 26 when shot down over North Vietnam in April 1955. Last week his name was to be returned with a five-member commission that went to Hanoi to account for missing Americans.

Lieutenant Roark's widow has remarried and lives in a suburb of Montreal with the three Roark children. The youngest was born a week after his death.

WASHINGTON, March 23 (UPI)—Talking with reporters today, President Carter described the error in identification as "an honest mistake."

He said that medical experts had discovered the error when they examined the remains for purposes of identification and found that one body was that of a Vietnamese man aged about 50. The body will be returned to Vietnam.
