WASHINGTON CITY.

FRIDAY, October 22, 1802.

The Italian Republic has adopted a national flag, which is deſcribed below, and which has been officially announced to the government of the United States, by the Chargé des Affairs of the French Republic, in conſequence of inſtructions received from his government.

FLAG OF THE ITALIAN REPUBLIC.

A pattern of the flag of the Italian Republic has been tranſmitted by the French government to the maritime prefects. It conſiſts of a parallelogram of a red ground, of which one ſide is double the length of the others. In this parallelogram is contained a lozenge of a white ground, and within the lozenge a parallelogram of a green ground. The pendant is divided into four compartments. The firſt next the acorn is a trapezium of a red ground, containing a white iſoſceles triangle, with its baſe touching the ſecond compartment, which is a green ground with a white border above and below. The third conſiſts of tranſverſe ſtripes, the extremes of which are red, and the intermediate ones white. The fourth is entirely red.

GEORGIA ELECTION.

The General Election for Repreſentatives in Congreſs, and for members of the ſtate Legiſlature, took place on the 4th inſtant.

Georgia ſends four repreſentatives to Congreſs. There are ſeven candidates, all of whom, we believe, are republican.

The votes of the counties of Richmond, Columbia, Jefferſon, Lincoln and Wilkes, are divided, as follows, among the candidates.

John Milledge	2,472
David Merewether	2,454
Peter Early	1,722
Samuel Hammond	1,371
Francis Willis	1,303
Joſeph Bryan	1,294
Mathew M'Aliſter	727

The following is a correct ſtatement of the votes in the ſeveral counties of Delaware:

	Bayard.	Rodney.
New-Caſtle	707	1664
Kent	1162	943
Suſſex	1537	814
	3406	3421—15.

Accounts from St. Domingo, received at the office of the Mercantile Advertiſer, repreſent that colony as being once more in a ſtate of general inſurrection, the negroes having riſen throughout the whole interior, and commenced the repetition of thoſe outrages which have heretofore rendered St. Domingo a ſcene of devaſtation and horror.

The inſurgents are treated with the greateſt ſeverity wherever they happen to fall into the power of the French troops: but the number of the latter is too inſignificant to contend effectually with the former; and it is conjectured that on the failure of the reinforcement of a diviſion of 12,000 men (which was daily expected, though without any certainty as to the probable time of its arrival) St. Domingo will either be entirely loſt to France, or remain to be conquered a ſecond time. At preſent the ſea-ports are conſidered as the only places of ſafety.

CIRCULAR.

Tunis, July 9th, 1802.

SIR,

On the 7th inſtant the American brig Franklin, captain Andrew Morris, was brought into Biſerta, a port in the regency, prize to a Corſair of Tripoli.—She was bound from Marſailles to Saint Thomas, laden with wine, oil, and ſoap, ſilks, perfumery, hats, &c. on account of Meſſieurs Summerl & Brown of Philadelphia, and captured off Cape Palos.—Yeſterday the brig & cargo were put up at public auction in the City; but the maſter and crew, nine in all, are deſtined for Tripoli!

I have official information that there are five Tripoline Corſairs out.—I requeſt you will make this letter Circular that our Conſuls, on the Mediterranean coaſt may prevent, within their precicts, all American Merchantmen from putting to Sea without Convoy.

Your's, &c.

WILLIAM EATON.

Extract of a letter from Leghorn, dated Aug. 1ſt, incloſing the above circular, to a gentleman in New-York.

"There wants nothing to render the navigation of the Mediterranean as ſafe for Americans as for the commercial nations of Europe, but from 8 to 10 ſmall well armed veſſels, which would ſoon drive theſe lawleſs barbarians off the ſurface of the ſea—Such has always been our opinion, and we are pleaſed to ſee it corroborated by the teſtimony of our experienced friend, Mr. Eaton, in his private correſpondence with us."

From the Morning Chronicle.

Honorary Medal—On March 24th 1800, Congreſs voted to Commodore Truxton a Gold Medal, as a mark of their ſenſe of his gallantry, and the bravery of the American tars under his command, in ſupporting the honor of the American flag. The particular action that occaſioned this honorable teſtimony of national reſpect, was his engagement in the Conſtellation of 38 guns, with the French directorial man of war, La Vengeance, of 54 guns.

Calumny had whiſpered that this medal, which was voted under the old adminiſtration, would be very lamely put into execution under the preſent—if the vote was at all acted on. We are happy to find that, in contradiction of this report, every attention has been exerted to honor this vote of Congreſs, and the ableſt artiſts in our country employed to carry it into effect. The work was ſome time ſince completed, and the medal preſented by the Preſident in a very handſome manner to Commodore Truxton. Owing to an accident in the mint very few impreſſions were ſtruck; of courſe thoſe few will be objects of demand at a future day. We have ſeen an impreſſion, and have heard the opinion expreſſed by a perſon on whoſe judgment we can place confidence. According to this information, we conſider it ſuperior to any thing of the kind previouſly executed in this country. We ſhall not be ſingular in conſidering it honorable to our nation thus to diſtinguiſh the brave efforts of its citizens.

On one ſide of the medal is an excellent likeneſs of the Commodore—the inſcription,

PATRIE PATRES FILIO DIGNO.

And beneath,

THOMAS TRUXTON.

On the reverſe is a repreſentation of the action, with an inſcription, nearly in the words of Mr. Randolph, in the debate that preceded the vote of Congreſs.

United States Frigate Conſtellation, of 38 guns, purſues, attacks and Vanquiſhes the French ſhip La Vengeance, of 54 guns, 1ſt

March, 1800.

And beneath,

BY VOTE OF CONGRESS TO THOMAS TRUXTON, March 24th, 1800.

The deſign for the medal and the likeneſs were by Mr. Archibald Robertſon, of this city, and the die was engraved by Mr. R. Scott, of the mint, Philadelphia.

Halifax, N. C. October 4.

We have procured a copy of the following letter to the governor for the purpoſe of laying it before our readers, and directing the attention of the members elected to ſerve in the General Aſſembly to a ſubject perhaps more intereſting to the ſtate of North Carolina, than any thing which has ariſen ſince the revolution which eſtabliſhed our Independence. It is expected that the gentlemen who have charged themſelves with the care of the public intereſts, will avail themſelves of every opportunity to procure the neceſſary information, reſpecting the ſuppoſed title, of the heirs or deviſes of Earl Granville, as well as the grounds and principles, on which the ſtate reſts her claims to this important portion of her territory.

Aug. 1802.

Copy,

SIR,

We have thought it our duty to incloſe to your Excellency a copy of the proceedings in the ſuit brought by the heirs or deviſees of the late Earl Granville, againſt us in the circuit court of the United States, for the diſtrict of North Carolina.

Your Excellency will pleaſe to obſerve, that it appears by the letter of Mr. Edward Harris, counſel for the plaintiffs, that this ſuit is commenced for the expreſs purpoſe of trying their title to the Granville claim within this ſtate; the original Earl Granville's claim, as one of the Lords proprietors under the charter of Charles the Second, and the extent of his claim covering two thirds of this ſtate and Tenneſſee, are facts well known; how far this title has been affected by the revolution or by acts of the convention or legiſlature, they are now about to ſubmit to a judicial deciſion, and it remains with the public functionaries to uſe ſuch meaſures as they may deem expedient to defend the intereſts of the ſtate.

The counſel for the plaintiffs conſented that the pleadings in this ſuit ſhould not be made up until the next June term, ſo that a ſeſſion of the legiſlature might intervene, and ſeemed very deſirous that it ſhould be made a caſe agreed as to the facts, and avowed their intention to remove the cauſe as ſoon as poſſible before the ſupreme court.

We pray your Excellency, as the proper organ, to lay the buſineſs, before the legiſlature, with ſuch rights as it may be in your Excellency's power to collect on this intereſting ſubject, and we have the honor to be, &c.
