Joshua Nichols Alvord was a cattle dealer in Texas on a large scale; wrote that his life had been uneventful so far as the public was concerned, but sufficiently exciting as an individual. He had his creeds, "political, religious, hygienic, economic and financial." Early in life Mr. Alvord was a telegraph operator and manager. His second wife was a woman of rare attainments. Previous to her marriage she had taught painting, drawing and French in Va. and Mo.
