Hartford Herald.

HARTFORD.....OHIO COUNTY.....KENTUCKY.

BARRETT & BONNER, EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS.

The HERALD is a twenty-eight-column folio, printed on clear and beautiful brevier type, and is devoted to news, literature, and agriculture. While the HERALD is democratic politically, yet it is not intended to make it a partisan paper. If it favors a party measure, it is because of the measure; if it condemns, it will be for the same reason. Its news is gathered from all sources and condensed so that a single paper will contain as much general news as any of its contemporaries publish in the course of months.

AGRICULTURAL.

The HERALD contains about four columns of agricultural and domestic information weekly. These articles are practical and selected from the best authors, and written by practical men and women, and are very instructive—a single paper frequently containing information of greater value than the subscription price of a dozen copies.

It is one of the newsiest papers in the State; indeed, Hartford may be congratulated with having a paper in every respect equal to a city journal.—Bowling Green Globe. One of the best democratic hebdomadals in the State.—Frankfort Yeoman.
