The Advance

ESTABLISHED 1867.

Organ of the Congregational Denomination

It reaches the very best class of people and they read it from cover to cover.

Readers say: "We have taken it since its beginning, and could not keep house without it."

Advertisers say: "It is one of the best paying mediums in the United States."

Its average Weekly circulation for year ending September 30, 1895, was 23,241—a larger circulation than any other Congregational paper in the country.

If you have a good article, it will pay you to introduce it to these people. For rates, address
