Field and Farm

DENVER, COLORADO.

Weekly

Colorado agriculture would not flourish as it does without the assistance of this mechanically handsome, regularly illustrated and faithfully and carefully edited farm paper. It circulates exclusively in a field of its own, and is the official journal for the publication of stray notices. No paper is more extensively quoted.

Testimonials.

DENVER, COLORADO, December, 1891.
GEO. L. GOULDING, Live Stock Commission Merchant: "I could not well get along without the FIELD AND FARM as an advertising medium, and I patronize it liberally year in and year out. I know it has the best class of people for its readers and that its circulation is large."

DENVER, COLORADO, December, 1891.
WALL & PURSEL, Implement Dealers: "We want to say that the FIELD AND FARM is a journal of recognized standing and great circulation. We have advertised in it for years and feel that we have been well repaid by its influence."

J. C. BUSH, Special Eastern Representative, 47 Times Building, NEW YORK.
