Wendell Phillips was born in Boston, Nov. 29, 1811, and died there Feb. 2, 1884, aged seventy-three years, two months and three days. Mr. Phillips graduated at Harvard College in 1831, in the class with J. Lothrop Motley, the historian. He was handsome in person, of dignified manners, and of a generous disposition. He had a taste for history and antiquities. But oratory was his strong characteristic. He studied law for three years and was admitted to the bar in 1834. However, he had no taste for the practice of the law, and, as the clients did not come early to him, he gave himself heart and soul to the advocacy of negro emancipation, temperance, prohibition, woman-suffrage, redress of the wrongs of Ireland, labor-reform, the greenback theory of finance, etc., and was nominated for governor of Massachusetts by the reformers in 1870, and accepted the nomination, but failed of an election. His last public address was delivered Dec. 26, 1883, at the unveiling of the statue of Harriet Martineau, in Boston.

Mr. Phillips married Miss Anne Terry Greene, of Boston, who
