

John died without issue; Haydon and Joan his wife, where John is represented on one side of an altar, together with his sons kneeling, and Joan with her daughters on the other side, all in the attitude of prayer. This picture is supposed to be still in possession of some member of the family. The Devon branch of the Haydon family is represented by Mr. Frank Scott Haydon of the Record Office" (Chancery Lane, London, W. C.). Sometime about 1750, Cadhay came into possession of William Peere Williams, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and author of the Reports, who died there in 1766. He most probably inherited it, by virtue of being a descendant of Richard Williams, whose wife was Jane Haydon, daughter of Thomas (No. 12), niece of John, and sister of the Thomas (No. 13) to whom John originally bequeathed the estate. If this conjecture be correct, Cadhay has not changed hands, except by inheritance, for the whole 700 years, Sir Thomas Hare having received it, through the female line, from the Williamses, as he himself believes.

Haydons, descendants of this line, are still found at Tiverton, and a number having this spelling are in London. The late well-known B. R. Haydon, the painter, a native of Plymouth, belonged to this line.

94 CORNWALL GARDENS, SOUTH KENSINGTON,
LONDON, S. W., July, 1887.