MAMIE R. BRINSON HOUSE

HABS No. GA-2380

Location: 341 South Main Street, Statesboro, Bulloch County, Georgia
(U.S. Highway 301)

USGS Statesboro, Georgia Quadrangle

Significance: Part of the South Main Street Residential Historic District. The district was listed in the National Register of Historic Places on September 6, 1989 as part of the Downtown Statesboro Multiple Property Nomination. This house is in a district which reflects the continued popularity of late 19th century house forms, as well as the increasing popularity of the bungalow

The district is also typical of residential neighborhood dating from the 1910's and 1920's, comprised mainly of single-story bungalow structures constructed in an area with a gridiron street pattern. Houses in the district are arranged on lots perpendicular to the street and vary in setback. The closely spaced residences are freestanding and similar in style and overall character. The house lots vary in width from 60 to 75 feet with small front yards separated from the street by sidewalks.

Description: The Mamie Brinson House faces South Main Street, Statesboro, Bulloch County, Georgia. This house is a one-story, weatherboarded bungalow. It features a full-length side gable bungalow porch and a front gable entrance. The porch is supported by short battered wooden posts resting on tall brick piers. It also features an exposed rafter end, paired 4/1 windows and decorative gable end vents.

History: Statesboro Regional Library documentation discloses the building date of the Brinson House as 1941. According to Isabel Sorrier, Director of the Statesboro Regional Library, the property was initially owned by John B. Goff. Mr. Goff later sold the house to Lester Brinson and his wife Mamie R. Brinson.
