Location: Along a private drive, .1 mile northeast of the intersection of Mombasha Road and the Orange Turnpike, Monroe, Orange County, New York

USGS Monroe, New York Quadrangle
Universal Transverse Mercator Coordinates: 18.568280.4572230

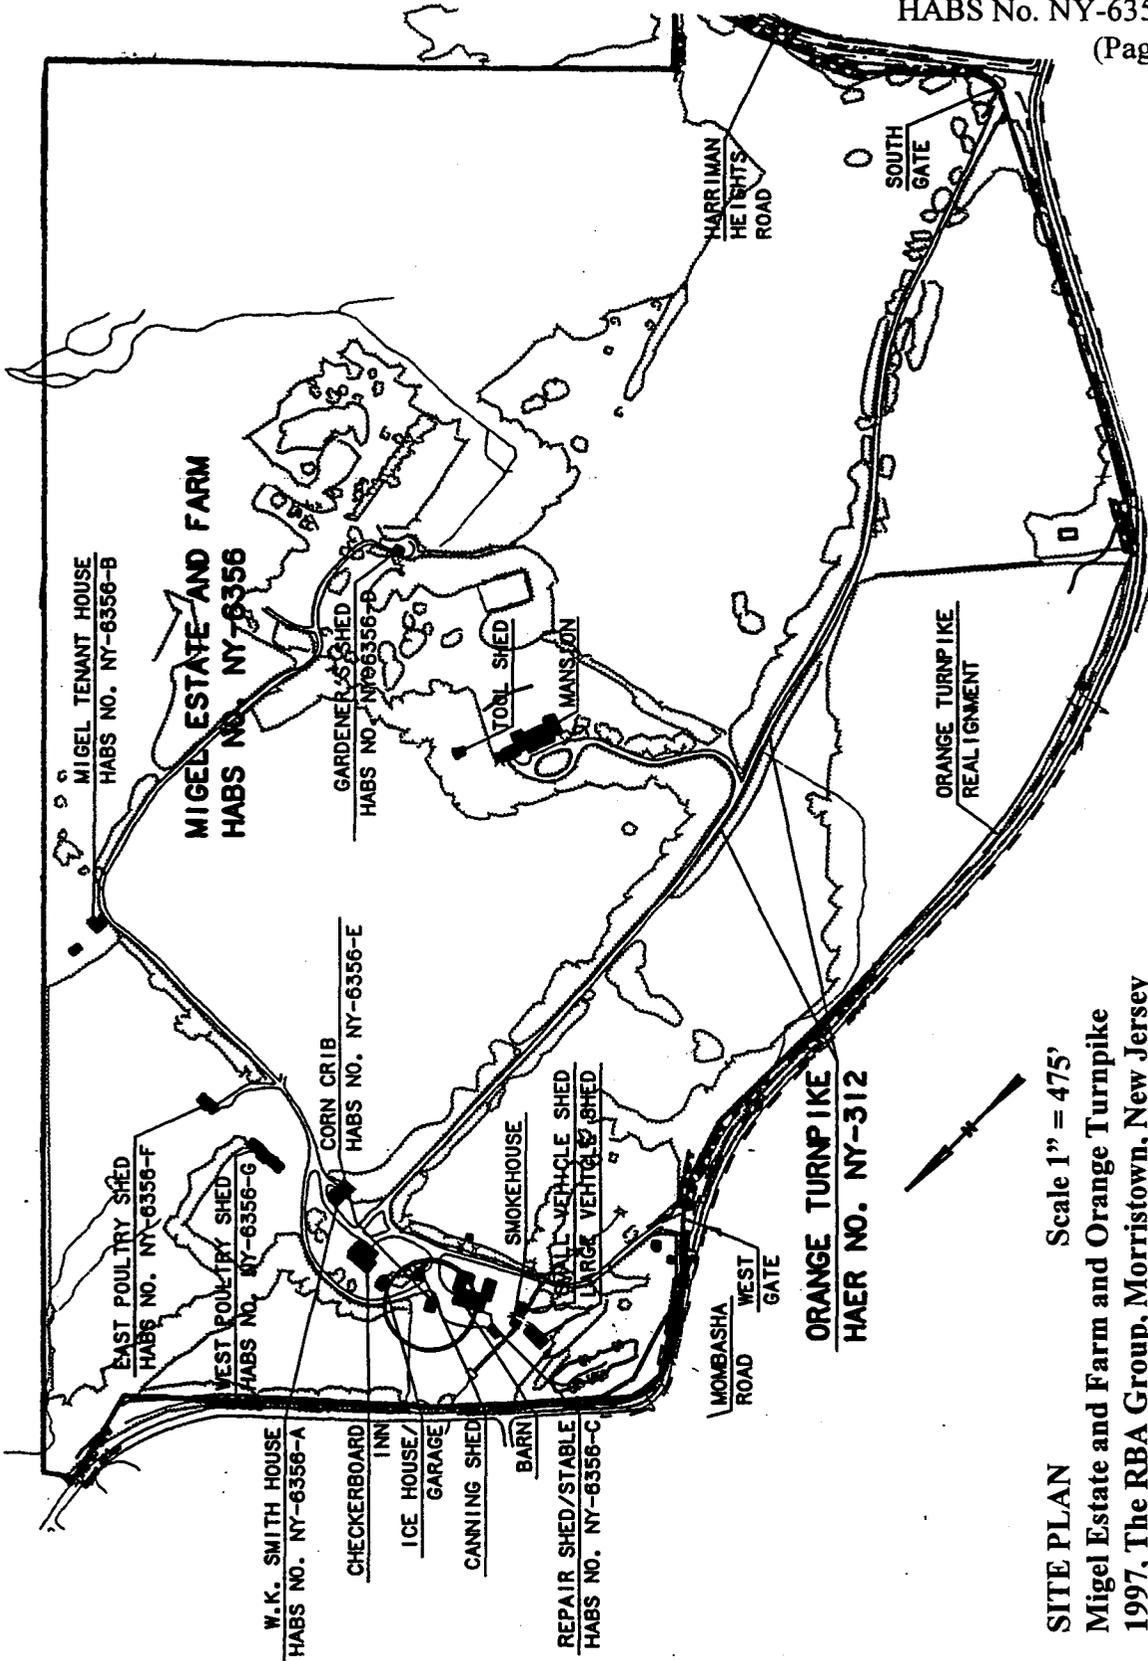

Significance: The house is representative of the expansion of the property during the Migel tenure from a group of individual farms to a single, large estate.

Description: The 17' x 28'6", frame, one-and-one-half story structure has canted east and west side walls and a wood-shingled gable roof with wide, overhanging eaves. The walls are constructed of vertical slat siding with clapboards in the gable peaks. The north and south elevations have a centered door covered with slats and are surrounded by a simple drip molding. A shuttered opening is located in the gable peak. The interior of the structure, which is filled with debris, is lined with wire mesh and has a tongue-and-groove wood floor.

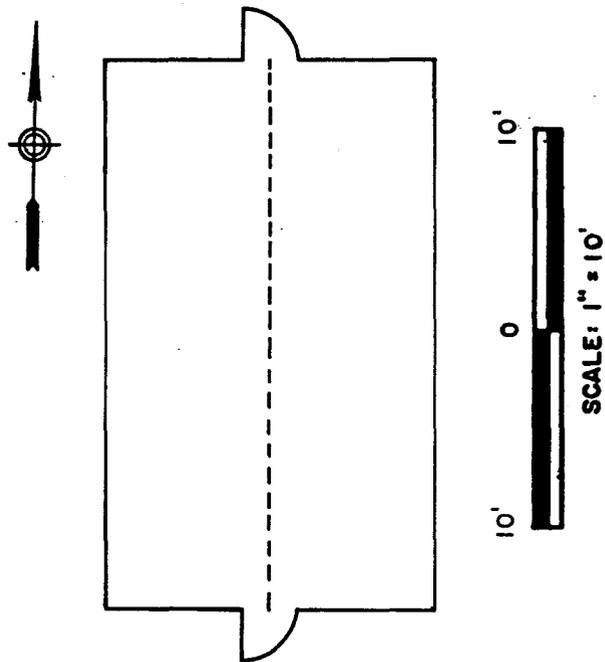

History: The building was constructed ca. 1914 as part of the estate and farm after Moses C. Migel purchased the Forshee farmstead and surrounding land. It is possible that it was designed by Lewis Colt Albro, the architect for the estate's mansion. The building is vacant. The building is owned by Great Expectations, Inc. 633 Route 211 East, Middletown, New York, 10940. The estate is being altered to construct a golf course and associated structures and single-family housing. The mansion and several of the buildings will be retained and re-used as part of the complex. As per a Memorandum of Agreement among the Army Corps of Engineers, the New York State Historic Preservation Office, the developer Great Expectations, and accepted by the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, those buildings scheduled for demolition are being documented.
