Won't injure even chiffons

Wash your silk blouse, whether chiffon cloth, crepe de chine, Georgette crepe, or wash silk, with Lux and it will stay white.

Lux contains no free alkali, gives you the richest, bubbliest lather and makes rubbing, which injures silk, unnecessary.

For such uses, dissolve Lux in hot water; then have the water for washing lukewarm.

Never wash silk in hot water, never rub it and never use very hot iron. Stretch thoroughly and press when wet. Lux won't harm anything that pure water alone will not injure.

CORRECTLY to design a corset is a matter of knowledge — knowledge of style and health requirements.

The corset is too fundamental an article of dress, too definitely the foundation of everything else, to be otherwise designed.

That is why thousands of women buy by the name

Lily of France

They let no question of style or health correctness concern them. They trust implicitly to the expert knowledge which, for nineteen years, has met their exacting requirements
