

| STATE                              | COUNTY                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | TOWN OR VICINITY                                                                              |
|------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ✓ TENNESSEE                        | SUMNER                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Near Gallatin ✓14p8d                             |
| INDEX NUMBERTENN, 83-GAL.V, 2- | MONUMENT (Home of General James Winchester)CRAGFONT                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                               |
| REPRESENTED INNEGATIVE FILE    | H.A.B.S. SURVEY NO.TENN-#82                                                                                                                                                                                            | History: Completed 1802 by General Winchester. Present owner - McMurtree family-RFD-Gallatin. |
| PUBLISHEDPHOTOGRAPHS           | Description: Two story stone, center hall house, stone gabled ends, pitched roof, modified Corinthian Cornice, no porch or porticos on front, wing to rear forming "T" shaped plan for service, dining room and ball room. |                                                                                               |
| PUBLISHEDDRAWINGS              | 2-story porches on either side of wing. Inter-esting especially forid = FLOOR PLANS6-8369                                                                                                                  |                                                                                               |

HISTORIC AMERICAN BUILDINGS SURVEY

SMITH: WHITE PILLARS, P 28-31

its interior woodwork.

References: "History of Homes and Gardens of Tennessee" Parthenon Press-1936, "Tennessee-The Volunteer State" by John Trotwood Moore.

Additional Notes: Builder prominent in both Revolutionary War and War of 1812. Pioneer in the development of middle and west Tennessee.

First house in Tennessee to have a ball-room.

W. Jeter Eason
404 Goodwyn Inst. Bldg.,
Memphis, Tenn. 10-20-36

