P R E F A C E .

In view of the numerical strength, the widely separated membership, and in many instances the slight knowledge of ancestry in the possession of the members, it has long been our desire to compile an authentic record of the Foster and Penny families, so that each member might have in their possession all the available facts relating to the genealogical tree of which they are the branches. Closely identified with these two families is the Squires family, a record of which is given. In following the different branches which flow from the common source, we have found that the Foster family in particular has representatives through a great portion of the United States, and doubtless the large proportion of those bearing that name could trace their origin to CHRISTOPHER FOSTER, the founder of the family in this country.

Our authority for many of the facts presented in this RECORD may be credited to Lewis' "History of Massachusetts," Howell's "History of the Town of Southampton," and the "History of Suffolk County." In addition to these, we have had a wide correspondence with different members of the families, gathering from them many facts which have aided us in the work.

It was our purpose to present the engravings of all the children of JOSEPH and DEBORAH PENNY, but unfortunately but few could be obtained. These will be found in their appropriate places in this RECORD.

COAT OF ARMS OF THE FOSTER FAMILY.

HISTORICAL.

About the year 1774 WAKEMAN FOSTER built a small house at Canoeplace, on the north side of the road, a short distance to the west of the hotel known as the Canoeplace Inn.

About the year 1800 he removed to Pon Quogue. The hotel at Canoeplace was built in the year 1750, and until after the Revolution was the only house between Riverhead and Southampton. It was built and owned by Jeremiah Culver; then purchased by Major George Herrick. In 1785 it was sold to Charles Howell. It was next owned by Israel Conklin, after which it has had many owners.

When WAKEMAN FOSTER removed to Pon Quogue there were comparatively few white people in that part of the township. The Montauk and Shinnecock Indians owned a large portion of the land, and were always disposed to remain on friendly terms with their white neighbors.

The different branches of the Foster family appear to have settled in Southampton and the adjacent towns on Long Island, some going as far as Jamaica and Brooklyn, until about the year 1769 when three sons of JONAS FOSTER, viz., Jedediah, Abram and Daniel, migrated to the western part of the State of New York, then a dense wilderness, and there established their homes. From thence as civilization advanced westward, their descendants followed, when at the present time representatives of this family may be found in nearly every State in the Union.

WAKEMAN FOSTER preferred not to join his more adventurous brethren in their westward migration, but being the youngest of the family he remained at home, and spent the latter portion of his life at Pon Quogue.

AN INCIDENT OF THE REVOLUTION.

During the Revolutionary War he, in common with the inhabitants of that part of Long Island, was a staunch Patriot.

On one occasion a squad of British soldiers, while on a foraging expedition, visited Pon Quogue, and among other things of a portable nature they seized upon a flat bottomed boat belonging to Mr. Foster. As it had to be transported to the Peconic Bay—a distance of three miles—to be of any service to the “red coats,” the officer in charge ordered the owner to hitch up his team, a handsome pair of oxen, and cart the boat to the other bay. This seemed like adding insult to injury, but there was no alternative. Mr. Foster was a praying man, and with expletives as strong as his orthodox Christianity would permit, he proceeded in a leisurely manner to yoke up his team and prepare to march.

After much delay and many threats from the impatient soldiers, he announced himself as ready. The road was somewhat obscure and darkness was coming on, and at Mr. Foster's suggestion he was permitted to lead the way while his captors followed.

The soldiers were weary with the long march of the day, while the oxen and their owner were fresh, and the driver was frequently admonished to make less speed and keep closer to the squad; this he did with much seeming difficulty, and with many “whoas,” “gees” and “haws” to his team. When about half the distance had been travelled, and the impatient team had secured a lead of many rods, just at a particularly dark spot in the road the strong voice of Mr. F. was heard, as if re-doubling his efforts to hold in his team ; but as his "whoas" increased, the distance between him and his captors also increased, and instead of pursuing the straight road, in some unaccountable manner the team seemed to have taken to the woods, and continued at break-neck speed until the voice of the driver was lost in the distance. With such remarks as soldiers might be expected to use under such circumstances—by no means of a complimentary or pious nature—they concluded that they were the victims of a "Yankee trick" and marched on without the boat or its owner. Could they have seen WAKEMAN seated in his boat prodding his oxen with a sharpened stick, while he was hollering with all his might, Whoa ! Whoa ! and giving them the impression that he was trying to hold his team, their appreciation of his cleverness would have been heightened and their own chagrin increased. He returned to his home the following morning, none the worse for his escapade, and often related in after years his experience with the "red coats"—as the British soldiers were called.

HOMESTEAD OF WAKEMAN FOSTER.

NOTE.—This house was built by John S. Foster about the year 1813, and occupied by him for several years, when an exchange was made between him and his father, Wakeman Foster, John S. taking the Wakeman house and property, a short distance to the southeast (see page 61), and Wakeman taking this house, where he remained until his death.

The building of these houses was done under the supervision of Rogers Squires, the timber being cut from the surrounding forest, and hewn for beams, rafters and sills, where it fell. The boards were sawn at the sawmill situated a half mile to the south of the house, and near the shore of the Shinnecock Bay—known as the "South Side." The mill had four immense sails, the motive power being wind. The magnificent Summer residence of Judge James Carter now occupies the site formerly covered by the old sawmill. After the death of Wakeman Foster the house passed into the possession of his youngest son, Maltby Foster, who upon his death gave the property to his son, Josiah Foster, by whom it is now (1895) occupied.

A PERSONAL SKETCH.

In personal appearance WAKEMAN FOSTER was below the medium height; his frame was exceedingly well knit and muscular and possessing unusual physical strength. His eyes were blue, hair light and inclined to curl; his features were kindly, though at times stern. His disposition was somewhat variable, though cheerfulness was its predominating feature, and if at times he became irritated at what might seem to others small provocations, his anger was but transient.

Though not enjoying the facilities for a liberal education, he was nevertheless an extensive reader and deep thinker. Especially was he a good Bible student, and on questions of theology and in general information he was regarded as one of the best equipped men in the town of Southampton. He was an earnest Christian, and fearless in the expression of his religious convictions. He had many friends and few enemies. An evening spent at the house of WAKEMAN FOSTER was regarded as an intellectual treat. He was born April 10, 1738, and died Dec. 20, 1829, aged 91 years 8 months and 10 days.

NOTE.—It may be of interest to some of the numerous descendants of the family to note, that the Foster family was among the few to settle in the town of Southampton who wore a coat of arms. In the language of Heraldry it was as follows:

Argent on a bend, wavy sable, three bucks' heads caboshed.

RECORD OF ANCESTRY.

CHRISTOPHER FOSTER came from England in the ship "Abigal," in the year 1635, aged 32 years, with his wife Frances, aged 25 years. With them they brought three children, namely, Rebecca, Nathaniel and John.

In the year 1637 he was invested with all the privileges of citizenship at Boston, Mass. The same year he resided at Lynn, where sixty acres of land were allotted to him. He came to Southampton between the years 1649 and 1653.

After his arrival from England the following children were born: JOSEPH, Hannah and Sarah.

WAKEMAN had two sons and three daughters, namely, Phebe, Lydia, Jemima, JOHN SAWYER and MALTBY.

He had two wives. By his first wife, MARTHA SAWYER, PHEBE and JOHN SAWYER were born. By his second wife, PHEBE CLEAVES, LYDIA, JEMIMA and MALTBY were born.

PHEBE married Joseph Penny. To them the following children were born: EDWARD, JOHN, FOSTER and SARAH.

EDWARD lived and died at New Bedford. JOHN was drowned at Amagansett. FOSTER was killed by a whale while at sea. SARAH married Abram King and now (1895) resides at Springs, L. I.

To LYDIA and Abram Edwards the following children were born: CATHERINE and Orlando.

JEMINA married ROGERS SQUIRES. To them the following children were born: BENJAMIN F., LEWIS R., Alanson, Lydia A., Horace, Gilbert N. and Jerusha.

MALTBY married Hannah Dickerson, by whom he had the following children: ABIGAL, HALSEY, CLARISSA, MARY, JULIA and JOSIAH.

PERSONAL SKETCH.

JOHN SAWYER FOSTER was to some extent the counterpart of his father. Somewhat below the medium height, though exceedingly muscular and of great physical endurance, clear blue eyes and light curly hair. He was a great worker, and accomplished more in his lifetime than most men are capable of. When he began life in Pon Quogue, there was but a small portion of the land cleared for cultivation, but by steady and persistent toil, assisted by a large family of boys, he succeeded in clearing and reducing to a state of cultivation more than sixty acres. His wife aided him in no small degree in making his toil successful. The loom and spinning wheel were among the most useful articles of household furniture, and for many years those boys were clad with garments woven by their mother, the material for which was secured from the flax which was cultivated on the farm. The writer, being the youngest of the family, has a faint recollection of the hum of the wheel and the rattle of the loom, and very vivid is his remembrance of the first pair of blue yarn mittens that he ever owned. He gathered stray locks of wool from the rails and fences beneath which the sheep had passed, and his mother carded, colored, spun and wove it into mittens.

REUNION OF THE FOSTER FAMILY AT PON QUOGUE, AUG. 8, 1877.

The following account was published in the "Sag Harbor Express" and the "Southside Signal" of August 16, 1877:

A reunion of the family of John S. and Phebe Foster was held at Pon Quogue, L. I., on the 8th of the present month. The occasion was a memorable one in the history of the family, it being eighteen years since a similar gathering took place.

The entire family at the present time numbers one hundred and thirty-nine, there being one hundred and six direct descendants and thirty-three sons and daughters in law.

Through the kindness of Mr. George B. Brown and others, the large tent belonging to the Methodist Society of Sag Harbor was obtained and pitched in a field belonging to Edward H. Foster. An inpromptu grove of cedar and evergreen trees was picturesquely arranged about the tent and grounds, while the interior was festooned with wreaths and beautiful combinations of flowers and grasses. A large flag pole was erected in front of the tent, from which floated the Stars and Stripes, giving to the whole an animated and pleasing effect.

The different members of the family began to arrive soon after ten o'clock, and the first table was spread at two p. m. This table was occupied by Mrs. Foster with twelve of her fourteen children with husbands and wives. It was a matter of much regret to all that the other two sons could not be present—Mr. J. L. Foster being in Michigan, and J. R. Foster being unavoidably detained at his home in Peconic, L. I.

The second table was occupied by the grandchildren and the third by the great-grandchildren, there being present one hundred and nine members of the family. Among the latter were Miss Esther A. Penny, a younger sister of Mrs. Foster, and Mrs. William White and Mrs. Charlotte Polley, nieces of Mrs. Foster.

After the last cloth had been removed the company were seated and joined in singing appropriate selections. Alonzo Foster, the youngest member of the family, opened the exercises by reading an original poem written by him for the occasion, and gave a brief outline of the family history, in which was included many interesting family incidents. He was followed by the Rev. William Beale, from Moriches, and the Rev. Joseph Pullman, from Nostrand Avenue M. E. Church of Brooklyn.

The gathering was a pronounced success, and was highly enjoyed by every one present.

Mrs. Foster bears her eighty-two years lightly, and seemed to appreciate the pleasures of the day with as much relish as the younger members of the family.

It is not often that we witness such a gathering. Mrs. Foster comes of a long lived family, her ancestors for generations back living, as she has done, to see their great-grandchildren grow up around them.

The following is the poem read by Alonzo Foster at the family gathering :

I.

We now are all here, 'tis a grand demonstration
 Of kindred united a mother to greet,
 Whose years have been lengthened to four score and over ;
 Now, children and grandchildren and their children meet.

II

Seven sons have been born and all of them living,
 Seven daughters are also here to unite
 With their five and eighty descendants, who number
 Still twenty-eight more in ovation to-night.

III.

One link only, broken—we lost our dear father,
 Leaving mother a widow to mourn evermore,
This cemented the love of children and kindred,
 Which glowed to a fervor unknown heretofore.

IV.

While tear-drops are welling, and sorrowful heavings
 Are heard from the household, each heart-beat will throb
 With varied emotions, and sweet thankful whispers
 Be heard, for our blessings above every sob.

V.

'Tis seldom you see a throng of so many—
 So long preserved—and how came it to be?
 It's nucleus was this: father fostered a Penny,
 It rapidly grew to a hundred you see.

VI.

We will nurture that Penny as long as we're living,
 And Foster forever it's increasing gain,
 'Till the wealth of affection is seen in the living
 That rouses to duty the healing all pain.

VII.

Her fostering care has preserved as a unit
 The love of all kindred, and while we adore,
 It is with amazement we read o'er the record
 That numbers one hundred and some fraction more.

The following is a list of those present at the Reunion, in the order of their families :

OBITUARY OF PHEBE FOSTER.*

Died at Pon Quogue, October 25, 1881, Mrs. Phebe Foster. Mrs. Foster was the daughter of Joseph and Deborah Penny, of Red Creek, L. I. She was born August 6, 1795, and in her eighty-seventh year when she died. She was married to John S. Foster in the year 1812, and moved to Pon Quogue in the following year. She possessed many rare and excellent qualities and was beloved and honored by all who knew her.

Many of the older inhabitants of Southampton, Bridgehampton and Sag Harbor used to make her house their home when visiting Pon Quogue for the purpose of duck shooting on Long Point. Among them are some of the following names familiar to the writer: Judge Rose, Colonel Rose, Richard Gilson, "Squire" Topping, Peltire Fordham and John Sherry. In her last days Mrs. Foster would frequently refer to those earlier days with much pleasure.

* As published at the time of her death.

She was one of the pioneers in this part of the township, there being but two houses here when she and her husband entered upon their lifework in the midst of what was then an unbroken forest; but as time passed, sons and daughters were born, the trees were felled and the land was cleared and cultivated until a large and fertile farm bespoke their industry and perseverance. Mrs. Foster was the mother of fourteen children—seven sons and seven daughters; twelve of them being present at the funeral. It was her oft-expressed wish that she might not live to bury any of her children; it was granted, for she passed away quietly in their midst, fully prepared and ready for the Master's summons. Her lifework was fully done.

On her eighty-second birthday it was her wish that a family reunion should be held, and in compliance with that wish a large tent was erected, and her descendants to the third generation gathered beneath it. When the grandchildren and great-grandchildren were seated at the table—numbering over one hundred—she, accompanied by her niece, Mrs. Samuel Polley, of Sag Harbor, went to each of them, and placing her hand upon their shoulders, addressed them kindly, calling each one by name. Among the whole number there were but two whose names she did not remember.

Thus another one of our landmarks has gone. One after another they are passing away. Brave, earnest and strong, full of years, with honored memories, they leave behind for us to imitate the remembrance of lives filled with honest toil and grand achievements.

HOMESTEAD OF JOHN S. FOSTER, PON QUOGUE, L. I.

NOTE.—This was the second house owned by John S. Foster; the first was built by Wakeman Foster about the year 1801, and was located about sixty rods to the south of where this one stands; it was destroyed by fire in the year 1832, after which the present house was built.

After the death of John S. Foster the property passed into the hands of his son, James R. Foster, who sold it to his uncle, Capt. Austin Penny, upon whose death it passed by will into the hands of his youngest son, Capt. Alanson C. Penny, by whom it is now occupied. This engraving represents the house as it was when occupied by John S. Foster; it is now enlarged and somewhat changed in appearance.

FAMILY RECORD OF MALTBY FOSTER.

MALTBY FOSTER, second son and youngest child of WAKEMAN FOSTER, was born in the year 1787 and died in 1862. He was in many respects dissimilar to his brother, JOHN S. FOSTER.

In personal appearance he was above the medium height; dark eyes and hair. In temperament he was mild, and slow to take offense. He was of a social turn and enjoyed life as it passed. He borrowed no trouble or useless anxiety from the future, but with true philosophy adopted the Scriptural doctrine, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." While this did not secure to him much of this world's riches, it nevertheless led him to avoid much of the friction and anxiety that more worldly prosperous men encounter.

He was a religious man, and was always free in the expression of his belief. His faith was clear and unshaken to the end of his life.

His wife, Hannah Dickerson, was the daughter of the Rev. Nathan Dickerson, who for many years was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Baiting Hollow, L. I.

Maltby and Hannah Foster had two sons and four daughters, namely: Abigal, Halsey, Clarissa J., Mary, Julia and Josiah.

ABIGAL FOSTER was born Dec. 2, 1818.

Married DAVID CARTER — —, 1838.

Children of David and Abigal Carter:

HALSEY FOSTER was born— —, 1821. He died at the age of ten years, from the effects of a gunshot wound received from the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of a playmate.

CLARISSA J. FOSTER was born Sept. 30, 1824.

Died July 9, 1886.

PENNY HOMESTEAD AT RED CREEK, L. I.

NOTE.—This house was built by Joseph Penny when he first came to Red Creek—either just previous to, or after his marriage. Here his large family was born and reared. The house is pleasantly situated near the Peconic Bay, and has remained substantially unchanged in appearance until the present time—1895.

After the death of Joseph Penny his son Manassah took charge of the property, his mother, Deborah Penny, and his sister, Esther Ann, occupying the western portion of the house. Upon Manassah's removal to Illinois, his nephew, Capt. William S. Foster, purchased the property and occupied it for a number of years. Upon his removal to Pon Quogue it was sold to other parties, and at the present time is unoccupied and is fast going to decay. (This with the Wakeman and J. S. Foster homesteads, was sketched from actual measurements by Clarence D. S. Foster.)

RECORD OF THE PENNY FAMILY.

JOSEPH PENNY was born at Aquebogue, in the town of Riverhead, Suffolk County, N. Y., in the year 1768, and died April 15, 1845.

He removed to Red Creek, in the town of Southampton, about the year 1780, where he resided until his death. He married Deborah Squires in the year 1780. After his death his son Manassah took charge of the homestead, and remained there until the year 1853, when he removed with his family to Illinois. His mother, Deborah Penny, accompanied him, and remained an inmate of his home until her death, November 14, 1859, being ninety-two years old.

Of the early history of the Penny family we have been unable to gather much authentic information. They seem to have been among the early settlers of the eastern part of Long Island, and of a hardy and long-lived stock. According to the best information they originally came from Wales.

Joseph Penny was a man of a mild and gentle disposition; he was particularly fond of children—a characteristic which seems to have been transmitted to his descendants. He was deeply pious and was for many years an elder in the Presbyterian Church ; his house at Red Creek was a transient headquarters for the ministerial brethren, not only of the Presbyterian denomination, but for others as well, for while he was a loyal son of his own church, he was nevertheless too liberal to withhold a warm welcome from any of God's people.

Toward the latter end of his life he became totally blind ; but the light of a steadfast Christian faith never faded from his heart, and amid the darkness of his old age he ever retained that gentle cheerfulness that characterized his earlier life.

By patient industry he succeeded in clearing and preparing for cultivation a farm of more than thirty acres ; but owing to the lightness of the soil it did not return a rich recompense for the labor bestowed upon it. He was, however, a prosperous farmer for those early times, and left behind him a substantial property.

For many years after his death the old homestead at Red Creek was the "Mecca" where children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren frequently gathered, and which will ever be hallowed by delightful memories.

DEBORAH PENNY was in many respects unlike her husband. Of exceedingly slight physique, she nevertheless possessed remarkable vigor, both of mind and body; and while she had all the religious fervor of her husband, the strength and force of her character qualified her to stand beside him as a true helpmeet, and in many instances serve as a discreet and wise counselor. She outlived her husband by many years, and remained the same energetic, large hearted, loving woman to the last day of her life.

RECORD OF THE SQUIRES FAMILY.

ELLIS SQUIRES came from Machias, Me., in the Summer of 1773. With him he brought his wife and children and household effects.

Owing to the limited means of transportation in those early times, he was compelled to provide his own — a large whaleboat properly equipped with sails and decked for the voyage. His crew consisted of his two eldest sons, who performed the duties of seamen, while his wife and daughters attended to the culinary department.

On arriving at Long Island he settled in the town of Southampton, and may be regarded as the founder of the Squires family so numerously represented in this part of the State.

His family consisted of nine children, three sons and six daughters, namely, Ellis, Seth, Daniel, Deborah, Parnell, Mary, Loraney, Margaret and Phebe.

NOTE.—It has been said that the male members of the Squires and Penny families were “born sailors.” While this statement may not have been literally correct, it nevertheless has much truth in it.

During the earlier days of the whale fishery, that industry offered ample inducements to young men whose inclinations led them to choose a sailor’s life.

From the representatives of these, and the Foster family, many of the whaling ships that sailed from Sag Harbor, New London and New Bedford were largely manned and officered. As skillful whalers, brave and sagacious sailors, they were unsurpassed. After the decline of the whale fishery the coasting and maritime trade claimed their attention, and many are now engaged in these industries. The sad record here given of those who died in foreign ports, or whose final resting place is in the voiceless depths of the ocean, will be read with interest by all.
