The Heart of the Home

TIME was when even kings slept on the floor in straw and rushes. Then came beds. And then, spring mattresses.

Time was when books were stacked in piles, heaped up in corners anywhere. Then came solid bookcases. And then, Globe-Wernicke Sections.

Beds of straw and rushes strewn upon the floor could not be found in any home today. Even the poorest enjoy the comforts of modern improvements.

So also with books. Everybody realizes the value of his library, however small, and appreciates the modern form of bookcase—the Globe-Wernicke Sectional Bookcase. Today, the out-of-date solid bookcase is found only in homes that are behind the times in the proper housing of books.

Today over seventy percent of all books are housed in Globe-Wernicke Sections.

Globe-Wernicke Sections provide advantages as completely unknown to the book owner and booklover of other days as were the ease and luxury of a bed to even the wealthiest persons of a few centuries ago.

The conveniences and advantages of the Globe-Wernicke System are set forth in the following pages. The perusal of these pages will be of both interest and service to anyone who owns books, whether a great library or only a few volumes which, it is hoped, may grow into a library.

Globe-Wernicke grows with your growing library; as you add section after section you place the mile-stones of progress, the outward symbol of your mental growth.

The Globe-Wernicke Co. originated Sectional Bookcases and has brought them to such a high state of both mechanical and artistic perfection as to have practically eliminated the cumbersome one-piece bookcase.

Reasonable Prices, Quality, Service, a Long Public Record for Fair Dealing together with Ample Resources and Factory Facilities explain the rapid and marvelous growth of the Globe-Wernicke institution.

Should you desire information which is not given in this book regarding the Globe-Wernicke Idea, you are cordially invited to write direct to

The Globe-Wernicke Idea
OF BOOKCASES

Expansibility of Globe-Wernicke Sections

One book-section with top and base is, up to its capacity, a complete bookcase. It is no longer necessary to leave even the few books one owns scattered around the home unprotected.

The owner of a dozen books can start with one section and add successive sections as the store of books increases. A Globe-Wernicke Bookcase is never too large or too small—it is always complete but never finished—always just right. It can be enlarged or reduced, moved and rearranged to suit an almost endless variety of books, spaces, tastes and conditions.

It is a "living bookcase" that grows up with your library at a cost trifling in comparison with the value of the books it preserves. For a small outlay you increase the capacity of your bookcase just as you need it. So gradually does the building up process go on that the expense is not felt and the result is a bookcase which you might have hesitated to purchase all at once.

Portability of Globe-Wernicke Sections

In the event of fire or for other reasons it is necessary to quickly remove a bookcase, the Globe-Wernicke Sections can be taken out of the house one section at a time to a place of safety without removing the books. This is possible, because every Globe-Wernicke Section is built solidly. The parts are not loose when shipped from the factory, as are the parts of sections of collapsible construction. When a customer buys a section of which the bottom, back, sides, top strip and door are loose, he or his dealer must fasten the pieces together, and the section can never be moved without first removing the books. Globe-Wernicke Solid Sections are far superior to the old out-of-date knocked-down or collapsible sections and cost no more.

As compared with a large one-piece heavy bookcase the convenience of buying or moving the sections singly makes the Globe-Wernicke bookcase a godsend to booklovers, in fact to discuss the relative merits of one-piece, cumbersome bookcases with sectional, is like comparing the tallow dip of our ancestors with the electric light of the twentieth century.

Because Globe-Wernicke Sections can be moved with books intact, they are great book preservers. The removing of books from their cases into baskets and boxes or piling them on the floor ruins bindings, dog-ears the pages and causes the books to appear old and shop-worn. A big heavy bookcase is difficult enough to move when empty and is practically impossible to move unless the books are first taken out.

Every book and title in a Globe-Wernicke Section is always in plain sight and readily accessible. There are no clumsy doors to open and close, or to swing out into the room with incidental damage to themselves or other furniture, as is the case with the old-fashioned one-piece bookcase. To remove a book, the door of but one section or shelf is raised to a horizontal position and when released closes instantly, thus exposing the fewest books to dust for the briefest time. It cannot come or remain open accidentally.

Each Globe-Wernicke Section has a dustproof glass door, cushioned with felt. In operation it swings upwards and retires into a space over the books where it is out of the way. These doors act on roller bearings, and contain our celebrated non-binding and noiseless cushion closing features, making a door simple and easy to operate.

UNIVERSAL STYLE

Beautiful in design, elegant in finish, perfect in proportions, the clean simple lines of the UNIVERSAL STYLE Sections will appeal to even the most esthetic sense. Here is an example of pure decoration, by just the repetition of regular sections. Everything is symmetrical, the idea of simplicity being carried out to perfection. Nothing florid or over-decorated is seen in this or any of the Globe-Wernicke styles. They cling tenaciously to the idea of good taste and consequently fit harmoniously in every decorative scheme.

There are no exterior metal parts save a small non-breakable knob. So precise is the cabinet work that the lines between the sections are scarcely discernible.

The ends of each section are made of built-up stock, beautifully veneered on all sides. Such ends cannot warp, shrink, split or swell. So carefully is this veneer matched by Globe-Wernicke experts to keep all sections of uniform appearance, that each side of any stack of units appears to be just one beautifully veneered board from top to bottom.

In the UNIVERSAL Style there are three different heights of book sections.

Pattern No. 809 which measures 9 inches high inside.

Pattern " 811 " " 11 " " "

Pattern " 813 " " 13 " " "

These three sizes, together with Top No. 841 and Base No. 847 comprise the entire line. The sections are 10 inches deep front to back and 32 inches wide inside in the clear.

It is not necessary to buy each of the three sizes. The selection of sizes depends upon the heights of the books. If all one's books are not over 9 inches in height, then only the No. 809 sections would be used. If the books are all 11 inches high or less, then both patterns Nos. 809 and 811 would be used, and if some of the books to be housed are as high as 13 inches, then all three sizes would be used.

The UNIVERSAL Style Sections are furnished in either Quartered Oak, Imitation Walnut or Imitation Mahogany.

The doors are Non-Binding, Dust-Proof, Noiseless and Air-Cushioned—the result of our patented door equalizer—the acme of perfection.

The bookcase combinations on the various pages of the catalogue are merely suggestions. While in the home three or four sections with top and base make a very attractive case, in the office the sections can be used eight or ten high. There is no limit to the size of a Globe-Wernicke Bookcase except the available wall space of a room.

LIBRARY DESK No. 864

The writing desk is a present day necessity in every home, and many homes boast of a desk in almost every room.

Library Desk No. 864 is complete in itself and may be used entirely alone, but whether used alone or with book sections, it is a most beautiful, decorative and perfect piece of furniture.

Its refined lines make it appropriate for any library, and yet being substantially constructed (built to endure), it will withstand the hardest usage, and is, therefore, most practical for the den, the study, the home office or the professional office.

Like the bookcase sections the wood of this desk is very pleasing, being carefully selected to secure beautifully figured effects both inside and out. The entire desk is made of built-up stock which cannot warp, shrink, split or swell.

It is roomy. The writing bed, when open as illustrated opposite is $32\frac{1}{8}$ inches wide and $29\frac{1}{2}$ inches deep. It is $30\frac{1}{2}$ inches from the floor—just the proper height. In the interior there are many compartments for paper, envelopes, etc., and these compartments including the pigeon holes are larger than in similar desks. Notice the two small drawers and the two pen racks. It is a delightful desk to work at—one that you always feel perfectly satisfied with.

Its dimensions are such that book sections and a top can be placed above it. If more book sections are required, they can be built at either side of the desk to form a harmonious whole. Here, again, is most clearly demonstrated the advantage of the expansibility of Globe-Wernicke Sections. They grow upwards or sideways, limited only by the space in a room, the repetition of regular units always assuring the symmetrical requirement of pure decoration.

Furnished in the same woods as the bookcase sections—Quartered Oak, Imitation Walnut or Imitation Mahogany.

THE OFFICE LIBRARY

If there is one profession which welcomes the Globe-Wernicke idea in bookcases with greater joy than another, it is the legal profession.

From the time a young man takes up the study of law to the day of his death he accumulates books. From the first he is quick to realize the many advantages of the Globe-Wernicke Unit Idea.

His bookcase grows with his library, section by section, as the need arises for housing the new law books published and delivered to his office.

But it is not only the lawyer who welcomes Globe-Wernicke Bookcases, but every business man, for business libraries are becoming the rule today and the average business man is as keen as the engineer or physician or attorney to learn from books just published the newest "discoveries" in his chosen field.

Alert, progressive business men are building their reference libraries within arm's reach. A bookcase made up of three or four sections, a top and base, is as essential to them as a desk. There is an intellectual atmosphere about a bookcase which the visitor to an office notices as soon as he enters.

Globe-Wernicke Sections can be extended to the ceiling and around all walls of a room. 97% of law books will fit in section number 811 which measures 11 inches high inside. No. 811 is the popular law book section.

COLONIAL STYLE

When the Pilgrims first dropped anchor off the "stern and rock-bound coast" of New England their little vessel carried in its hold only the bare necessities of furniture and household wares from the motherland—massive chests, heavy chairs and tables with sturdy underpinings, and stout spinning wheels of plain and serviceable design.

As the Colonists prospered, more elaborate furniture was imported. But their earlier struggles for existence had imbued them with a certain ruggedness of character that was everywhere reflected in the colonial life, homes and furnishings.

And modern colonial furniture—of which the Globe-Wernicke Colonial Bookcase is a masterly example—retains the massive form and simple lines of this early colonial furniture at its best, while discarding as vulgar and ostentatious the extremes in ornamentation that had gradually crept in.

In the solid base and beautifully curved feet of the Globe-Wernicke Colonial Style you detect the influence of the famous Flemish scroll—a pattern peculiarly characteristic of the early colonial designs. The straight lines of body and top incorporate the colonial ideal—economy of material to give utmost utility while preserving harmony and beauty of form. And on all its massive surface no metal parts show. While its sectional construction allows you to add to it as your library grows—yet this bookcase has always the appearance of a single piece of furniture.

SHERATON STYLE

Just as the Globe-Wernicke Company originated sectional bookcases, so it was first to realize the peculiar adaptability for sectional construction of the style of furniture created by Thomas Sheraton.

Of all period designs, undoubtedly the most charming and graceful is the Globe-Wernicke Sheraton. Since no metal parts are exposed, nor is any definition between separate units perceptible, it has the appearance of a one-piece library cabinet while possessing all the advantages of unit construction.

The Sheraton Style is made only of selected satin stripe mahogany veneer finished in a rich, dull mahogany brown. This finish suggests a mellowness of age entirely appropriate to the period in which this design was created. A simple but most effective decorative treatment is obtained with the inlay, a narrow line of old ivory tinge. When supplied without the inlaid lines, it is known as Sheraton Plain.

The Sheraton Style includes two widths; the one 35 $\frac{3}{16}$ inches wide outside, fitted with single doors; the other 51 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches outside, and fitted with double doors. All Sheraton doors are fitted with plain glass only.

ART-MISSION STYLE

The simple beauty and straight lines characteristic of the furniture which originated in the California Missions and which was later to become known popularly as Mission, Art Craft, Craftsman or Old English Quaint furniture, created a natural demand for a sectional bookcase to harmonize with library tables and chairs in these styles. To meet this demand the Globe-Wernicke Art-Mission Style was introduced. This includes two widths—one 34 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches outside, with single doors; the other 50 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches outside, with double doors.

THE DOUBLE-DOOR ART-MISSION DESIGN

The Double-Door type of the Art-Mission Style offers the opportunity of achieving more varied arrangements than are possible where the use is restricted to the Single Door type. Where the room to be occupied by the case is very large, the Double-Door type is the more appropriate, as its massive yet graceful outlines lend themselves particularly well to space-filling.

A combination of the two oftentimes will occupy a certain space to better advantage, either as regards economy of room or harmony with the surroundings. Such a combination is to be especially recommended in large libraries, where a monotony of the ensemble might result from too extensive use of only one type.

Globe-Wernicke Sectional Bookcases are objects of striking beauty yet they blend with the surroundings in a way that only furniture of such superior merit will do. Artist-artisans have given them their admirable lines, and the various finishes are applied with an expertness that satisfies the most exacting.

IDEAL STYLE

The dignity of the Ideal Style commands the instant respect that always attends a richly carved library table, or a massive chair of mahogany or oak. Its beautiful lines, fluted pilasters, paneled ends, and general stately appearance appeal at once to refined tastes.

The doors of the Ideal Bookcase are fitted with heavy beveled plate glass, that so effectively enhances the bindings of beautiful or rare books; or with double diamond leaded glass as illustrated on this page. There is no extra charge for either. Ideal Style doors are never fitted with plain glass.

ART-MISSION STYLE
SECTIONAL DISC RECORD CABINET

The talking machine's perfect reproduction of the world's best music has very naturally resulted in rapidly growing libraries of disc records in every home, and this has created a demand for a sectional disc record cabinet, one that will grow a section at a time as the record library grows.

In answer to this demand, after long and careful study and experiment, we developed and perfected the Globe-Wernicke Sectional Disc Record Cabinet, as illustrated on opposite and the following pages.

A section will accommodate ninety records of any thickness. This great weight means that the section must be strong, sturdy and built to endure. We have made the Unit doubly strong. There is an interior strong enough to hold ninety thick, or even one hundred and eighty thin records. This interior is placed within an outer section which is more substantially built than the interior.

The compartments are numbered consecutively 1 to 90. An index in an extra compartment to the extreme left has ninety double ruled spaces numbered 1 to 90 to accommodate the names of 90 double-faced records. Each record is given a number and placed in the compartment having the same number. Two sets of ninety gummed numbers are furnished with each index. This permits a double-faced record to bear its number on both sides.

1 Art-Mission Disc Unit Section	0329	16 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches	90 compartments for both 10 and 12 inch records.
1 Art-Mission Base Section	357	9 inches

The Disc Record Section is built doubly strong. First there is an interior which for all practical purposes could be used independently of the outer section except that it is open at the back and not highly finished on top. Consider how doubly strong the complete Globe Wernicke Disc Record Section is after the interior is placed in a regular built-to-endure Globe-Wernicke Unit.

The finely made sectional bookcase now takes its place agreeably in the well furnished living room, with furniture of historic design. The bookcases are Globe-Wernicke Sectionals

Not only do Globe-Wernicke Book Sections form an artistic, beautiful and decorative piece of furniture, but they create the intellectual atmosphere. They can be arranged in many ways, as in this room around a window; whereas, the old style bookcases can not.

The individual library. A Globe-Wernicke Bookcase in one's own room to form the "read-an-hour-before-retiring" habit.

There is an intellectua' atmosphere where there are good books and a dignified bookcase.

THE GLOBE-WERNICKE PLANT

Formerly, artistic furniture was a luxury for the very wealthy. Such craftsmen as Chippendale or Sheraton worked very slowly, judged by present standards. Their output was extremely limited. The great modern strides in skilled labor and efficient methods of production have changed all this.

Here you see the great plant of The Globe-Wernicke Company at Cincinnati, Ohio. Under this vast acreage of roof are combined the most up-to-the-minute methods of manufacture with the trained skill of an army of artisans, craftsmen, joiners and designers. Here you will find the Chippendales and Sheratons of today working under increased advantages that make for a maximum of finished production at a minimum of unit cost.

Here the Globe-Wernicke unit idea in bookcases was developed to its greatest degree of artistic and mechanical perfection.

Systematic co-operation on such a scale now enables you to enjoy a bookcase of the highest beauty of design and finish at the lowest possible expense. Nowadays there is a Globe-Wernicke Sectional Bookcase in nearly every modern home.
