"The thought that our original forefather left his home and country, emigrating to a new and unsettled region on account of religious principle should be precious in the eyes of his posterity, and cause them to so remember their father's God, that they may be gathered in the same bundle of life."
—Extract from letter of Mrs. Deborah D. (Gerould) Banney.

INTRODUCTION.

The origin of the publication of this chapter of family history is on this wise:—The descendants of Jabez Gerould, most of them living in Pennsylvania, have had several quinquennial gatherings. (See appendix.) At their last meeting, in September, 1884, it was decided to print their own family record, the expense was provided for, and the matter was committed to the care of Henry Gerould, M. D., of Cleveland, Ohio. The compiler made to him the proposition that we go one generation farther back, and print the descendants of Gamaliel Gerould, to which he cordially assented.

The collection of material for a complete family history was begun more than twenty-five years ago. The usual difficulties have been experienced, in obtaining the desired information from persons but little interested in such things, who alone could furnish the facts. However, as it has been "a labor of love," the work has been carried on as far as the means, time, and information of the compiler would permit. When a clue was found, it was followed. The portion here presented, containing the family of Gamaliel Gerould, is reasonably complete. The family of James Jerauld, and that of Stephen Gerould, brothers of Gamaliel, have been largely traced; that of Dr. Dutee Jerauld is in an unsatisfactory condition, although a large amount of material has been gathered. The descendants of the latter probably number as many as all the others, but many of them bearing other names, and being largely in the western and central states, and, more than all, some of them having little interest in a work of this kind, it has been impossible thus far to trace them all. Though "cast down" we are not discouraged, but propose to follow every clue that may be presented, until we have a full and satisfactory family record, with which this will then be incorporated.

It will be observed that we do not follow the original method of spelling the family name. The descendants of Stephen, generally, spell it as we do, though some have shortened it to Gerald. This particular branch has not been satisfactorily traced. The name is often confounded with the Irish name pronounced like it, from which the Fitz has been dropped. It is to be regretted that Gamaliel and Stephen ever changed the orthography.

There is a tradition that the family once had a "coat of arms," the device upon it being a heart, a crown, and a flower-de-luce, but into this matter I have never particularly inquired.

Further information in regard to the family history is solicited from any source. Errors will doubtless be found in this, but, when discovered, it will be a great favor if they are reported at once to either Dr. Henry Gerould, 1191 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, or to the compiler. Dr. Gerould has gathered the material from his family; the shaping of all has been done by myself. The method is not original, but the one now usually adopted by genealogists.

EXPLANATIONS.

The names are numbered consecutively. Against the names of certain children, on the left, will be found this character *. These persons became heads of families, and their families may be found under the corresponding black letter number farther on. Under the families, if the name is Gerould, the children's Christian names, only, are given; in all other cases the full name is given. The direct line of ancestors is given in connection with each head of family, except where one's family is given under his father's name. In the family record, b.=born; m.=married; d.=died.

GEROULD GENEALOGY.

The GENEALOGY of the DESCENDENTS of GAMALIEL GER-OULD, of Wrentham, Mass., one of the sons of Jacques, or James, Jerauld, is now completed and ready for distribution.
It begins with an account of Jacques Jerauld, who was the first of the name to come to this country, he being a Huguenot from the province of Languedoc, in France, and one of those unfortunates driven from his native land by the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

Much time and pains have been spent to make this record as accurate and complete as possible, though perfection in neither of these directions is claimed. The record of the descendants of the other children is being gathered as fast as possible, but it will be a long time before it can be completed.

The price of the book now offered, substantially bound in cloth, is ONE DOLLAR, for which it will be sent post-paid.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

1732-1799

George Washington was born on February 22, 1732, in Westmoreland County, Virginia. He was the first of six children of Augustine Washington, a planter and surveyor, and Mary Ball Washington, a well-to-do family. He was educated at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia, where he studied law and military science. He was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society.

Washington's military career began in 1752 when he joined the Virginia militia. He served in the French and Indian War (1754-1764) and the American Revolutionary War (1775-1783). He was the commander of the Continental Army from 1775 to 1783. He is best known for his leadership in the Battle of the Clouds (1754), the Battle of Brandywine (1777), and the Battle of Red Bank (1777). He was also the first President of the United States, serving from 1789 to 1797.

Washington was a member of the Sons of Liberty and the Continental Congress. He was a strong supporter of the American Revolution and the new Constitution. He was a member of the Federalist Party and the Society of the Cincinnati. He was also a member of the American Philosophical Society and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Washington died on December 14, 1799, at Mount Vernon, Virginia. He was buried in the family tomb at Mount Vernon. His remains were exhumed in 1832 and reinterred in the National Archives. He is buried in the Crypt of the National Archives.

GENEALOGY.

JACQUES (OR JAMES) JERAULD was a native of the Province of Languedoc, France. The family were Huguenots, and, according to tradition, successful silk manufacturers. In the general breaking up which followed the revocation of the edict of Nantes, which occurred in 1685, when five hundred thousand protestants left their homes for England, Nova Scotia, Massachusetts, South Carolina, and other localities, the subject of this sketch came to this country. The date of his birth, and of his arrival here, are unknown. There is a tradition that he was about twenty years of age when he emigrated, and that he was one of a family of twenty-one children. It is maintained by one branch of his descendants, that he settled in Boston, but his name does not appear in the list of settlers in that place, previous to the year 1700. We know that he finally settled in Medfield, Mass., as his name and family appear on its early records.

By profession he was a physician. It is probable that he had given some attention to medicine before leaving his home. During the voyage he fell in with another Huguenot family, to whom a daughter was born, when he acted as accoucheur. She was Martha Dupuis or Dupee, whom, when she had arrived at a suitable age, he married. It is supposed that this was when he was about thirty-six or thirty-eight years of age, and she about sixteen. He practiced his profession in Medfield until his death, which occurred Oct. 25, 1760. His wife died March 25, 1763. The house which he built, and where he last lived is still standing, and in a good state of preservation. A grandson, bearing the same name, studied medicine with him, and took his practice and the old homestead. There are some now living who remember the latter, and being treated by him.

One branch of the family give the name of the immigrant as Dutee Jerauld, but this must be incorrect, as it stands on Medfield town records as James, and is so given in his last will and testament, the original of which, a few years since, was in the hands of Mrs. Ann P. (Jerauld) Townsend, Providence, R. I.

The following is a copy of this instrument :—

In the name of God, amen. This fifteenth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and fifty-nine, I, James Jerauld, of Medfield, in the county of Suffolk, in the Province of Massachusetts Bay, in New England, physician, being in perfect health of body, and of sound mind and memory, thanks be given to God, but calling to mind the mortality of my body, and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last will and testament: That is to say, principally, and first of all, I give and recommend my soul into the hands of God who made it, and my body I recommend to the earth, to be buried in a decent and Christian manner, at the discretion of my executors, nothing doubting but at the general resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God.

And as touching such worldly estate wherewith it has pleased God to bless me with in this life, I give, demise, and dispose of it in the following manner and form :—

Imprimis, I give and bequeath unto Martha, my dearly beloved wife, the improvement of one third part of my real estate so long as she remains my widow, and also the east end of my dwelling house I now live in, and one third part of my cellar under the west end of my dwelling house, and one third part of all my other buildings to her, so long as she remains my widow. Then I also give and demise unto my dearly beloved wife my house that stands near the meeting house in Medfield, and one acre of land, be it more or less, adjoining to said house, to be at her disposal forever, and also I give to her, my wife, all my debts and all my movable effects, both within and without doors, of every sort, and also all my negroes, to be at her disposal forever; only I will that my negro Cesar be not sold or disposed of out of my family, that is to say, be sold to any excepting to some of my children, and theirs, during his life.

Item, I give to James Jerauld, and Dutee Jerauld, my beloved son James' two youngest sons, after my debts and funeral charges are paid, the one fourth part of what shall remain of my estate, if any there be, after the rest of my children have had what I hereafter give to them, to make their portion equal to that which I have given to my said son James already, which was eighty pounds.

Item, I give to my well beloved son, Gamaliel Jerauld, besides what I have given him already, which is to the value of fifty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, twenty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, after my debts and funeral charges are paid; also one fourth part of what shall remain of my estate, if any there be, after the rest of my children have had what I hereafter give unto them.

Item, I give and bequeath unto my well beloved son, Stephen Jerauld, besides what I have already given to him, which is to the value of forty pounds, forty pounds more, after my debts and funeral charges are paid; also the one fourth part of my estate, if any there be, after the rest of my children have had what I hereafter give unto them.

Item, I give and bequeath unto my well beloved son, Dutee Jerauld, besides what I have already given unto him, which is to the value of fifty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence. twenty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence more, after my debts and funeral charges are paid; also the one fourth part of what shall remain of my estate, if any there be after the rest of my children have had what I have hereafter given them.

Item, I give my well beloved daughter, Mary Spaulding, besides what I have already given her, which is to the value of twenty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, forty pounds more after my debts and funeral charges are paid.

Item, I give to my well beloved daughter, Hannah Jerauld, sixty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, after my debts and funeral charges are paid.

Item, I give unto my well beloved daughter, Susanna Jerauld, sixty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, after my debts and funeral charges are paid.

Item, I give unto my well beloved granddaughter, Ruth Jerauld, twenty-six pounds, thirteen shillings, and four pence, after my debts and funeral charges are paid.

I do by these presents constitute, make, and ordain my well beloved wife, Martha Jerauld, with my two sons, Stephen and Dutee Jerauld, to be executors of this my last will and testament, and I do hereby utterly disallow, revoke, and disannull all and every other former will and testament legacies bequeathed, and executors by me in any ways named, willed and bequeathed, ratifying and confirming this, and no other, to be my last will and testament. In witness thereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year above written.

(Signed) JAMES JERAULD.

Signed, sealed, pronounced, and declared by the said James Jerauld, as his last will and testament. in presence of us, the subscribers, and subscribed in presence of the said James Jerauld.

[Witnesses names wanting in copy furnished.]

JABEZ GEROULD,<sup>3</sup> (Gamaliel<sup>2</sup>), b. Wrentham, Mass., Nov. 1, 1748; m. Demaris Bennett, of Newton, Conn., who d. March 20, 1829. He served in the Revolutionary war, first, as an enlisted man at Bunker Hill, where he was wounded, which caused his discharge. Subsequently he was commissioned a captain, and had charge of the ordnance of his division. After retiring from the army he settled in Newton, Conn., where he was a blacksmith. In 1798 he emigrated to Franklin, N. Y., and in 1801 removed to East Smithfield, Pa., where he resided till his death, June 12, 1802.

Mrs. Gerould was a devotedly pious woman. At the time they settled in Pennsylvania, there were neither churches nor school houses in which to hold religious services. Her house was always open for this purpose. Prayer-meetings were held there whenever the neighbors wished. Israel Brainard, a cousin of the Indian missionary, David Brainard, once came there on his way to his home missionary work in western New York. He held a service in the house of Mrs. Gerould one evening, and went on his way the next morning, probably never knowing why he was sent to Smithfield. In the audience was a man of some standing in the community, but quite skeptical. The sermon of Mr. Brainard, which was from Jer. 31 : 19, made no particular impression on any other than on this free thinker. It was regarded as a dry, doctrinal discourse. But it was the means of the conversion of this gentleman, who afterwards became an active Christian, and a most efficient helper in every thing that was good. The fruit of that sermon, among other things, as one on the ground has said, was the building of the Congregational church, this person selling his last cow to buy material with which to build.

APPENDIX A.

FAMILY REUNIONS
OF THE DESCENDANTS OF

The seventy-third anniversary of the settlement of Jabez Gerould in the town of Smithfield, Bradford Co., Pa., Sept. 15, 1874, will be long remembered by those who gathered from Kansas, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania, in the beautiful grove overlooking the village. The day was all that could be desired, cloudy and cool. At an early hour the family of Gerould and their friends began to arrive until some two hundred relatives came to enjoy the feast of social, intellectual and material things prepared with willing hands and liberal hearts. Old scenes were relived, old stories rehearsed, and old anecdotes retold, and the hearty laugh which constantly greeted the ear, told of enjoyments replete with happiness.

At the hour of twelve, the friends were requested to seat themselves in front of the stand. Col. W. E. Barton was chosen chairman, and, after prayer by Rev. J. H. Nason, Dr. H. Gerould, of Cleveland, Ohio, gave a brief outline of the genealogy of the Jerauld-Gerould family.

Dr. Gerould was followed by Dr. D. Bullock, the first and oldest physician in the township, and who has lived to see the most important changes in all of the oldest families in the vicinity. He said:—

“One of the descendants of the first of the family to come to this country was Mr. Jabez Gerould, the more immediate ancestor of those here present, who removed with his family from Connecticut, and remained for a brief space of time at Franklin, near the head of the Susquehanna river. From there they came on a slab raft down the river to this county, and resided for a time near Queen Esther's flats, so called. In 1800 he came to this township, and prepared a log house for the reception of his family, near the present residence of Mr. Daniel Carpenter. In 1801 they took possession, and established their home in the house so prepared.

"The appearance of the country here, and their prospects for the future were at that time repulsive and forbidding in the extreme. They had apparently reached the western margin of civilization, and there were but five or six families in this township, and none in the present township of Springfield, nor but very few west of there in this state. A very few inhabitants were settled along the river, but in no instance did the settlements extend back to the hills. The whole country here was virtually and literally a wilderness, where wolves, panthers, bears, deer, and other animals, held the right of 'eminent domain.' It was but twenty-three years previous to the time they came here, as before stated, that the Indians had been driven from the region by the army of Gen. Sullivan, in his celebrated march from the valley of Wyoming to western New York.

"In 1802, being about one year after they had reached Smithfield, a terrible calamity befell them. Mr. Gerould, the husband and father, and who was their main stay and dependence, was taken violently sick. A messenger was sent in haste to 'Tioga Point' (as it was then called), for a physician, but none could be obtained and very soon death closed his mortal career.

"Language cannot portray the situation and feelings of the mother, then a widow, in her bereaved and desolate situation, with a large family in her charge, and no visible means for their support. She had one daughter and seven sons, the oldest being about 16 years of age. Some of the oldest could help their father at his work, when he was living, but knew nothing as to taking the lead in business without him. To add to their affliction their only horse was wantonly killed, leaving them without any means of communication with the outer world, except by travelling on foot. None but the earliest settlers can understand the prevailing destitution of those days, and but a very few such settlers now remain to tell the story. All articles of merchandise were held at the most exorbitant prices, and such as are now considered the necessaries of life, could scarcely be obtained at any price. Luxuries were wholly out of the question. Of money there was positively none. During the nights the wild beasts held high revel, and the bands of music at that time were composed of owls and wolves, whose tunes if not melodious were at least audible; and sheep that were not shut up through the night, were sure to be killed before morning. It required full masculine strength and courage to encounter such obstacles.

"The widow, however, was equal to the emergency. She travelled to the river many times on foot, as aforesaid, the distance being about five miles, and took flax to spin, receiving pay in meal for the support of the family. This is but one of the many instances of the hardships she endured for the same laudable purpose, and I have been told by a person who knew, that sometimes they all went to bed supperless after a hard day's labor.

"Steady perseverance, however, overcome obstacles, which were apparently insurmountable, and the children all successively reached the age that in law is termed 'years of discretion,' being twenty-one years. They continued together until about 1806, when the daughter was married and left them.

"They continued to occupy the log house until the fall of 1812, when they removed to a new framed house, which I think is yet standing, near the present residence of Mr. Gorham Tracy.

"Mrs. Demaris Gerould, the mother, lived to a good old age, esteemed, respected, and beloved, by all her acquaintances, and all of her children were living and in attendance at her funeral."

A motion was then made that those who were living five years hence, would meet in that grove for a larger and more complete gathering.

After singing "Auld Lang Syne," the company gathered around the heavy laden tables, and discussed matters of a weighty character. At five o'clock the company separated, nothing having transpired to mar the pleasures of the day.

SECOND REUNION.

The Second Reunion of the Gerould family was held in East Smithfield, Pa., Sept. 15, 1879. The weather being too inclement to meet in the grove, the reunion was held in the Christian church.

Col. Wm. E. Barton was elected chairman, and Otis G. Gerould, marshal. After singing "All Together Again," an address of welcome was given by C. M. Gerould, of Athens, Pa., and the response by J. A. Gerould, of Warren, Pa. Dr. H. Gerould, of Cleveland, O., delivered the address of the day, which was largely historical and genealogical. He was followed by Rev. C. C. Corss, who spoke of the early settlers and the incidents connected with the new settlement. The following table gives the descendants of Jabez Gerould up to this date.

After appointing a historical committee from each family, the meeting adjourned to meet again in five years.

THIRD REUNION.

On Sept. 15, 1884, the third reunion of the Gerould family was held in East Smithfield, on the old homestead of George Gerould, now occupied by the widow of Ephraim B. Gerould, youngest son of George and Bathsheba Gerould. The day was all that could be desired. Ample arrangements were made for the accommodation of the large number of relatives and friends who met on this anniversary.

The following states were represented: Illinois by M. B. Gerould and wife; New York by Mrs. Phebe G. Hendricks, Beebe and John Gerould; Ohio by Dr. Henry Gerould; and Tennessee by Charles Gerould, and Mrs. C. G. Hungerford; and from Bradford, McKeen, Potter, Tioga, and Warren counties in Pennsylvania there were representatives.

The President, W. E. Barton, having died since the last reunion, the meeting was called to order by L. B. Gerould, and Marcus B. Gerould, of Rockford, Ill., was elected chairman. Rev. C. H. Phelps read appropriate scripture, and Rev. W. D. Lane offered prayer. An excellent choir furnished music for the occasion. After the opening song, "Welcome," Rev. George Ballentine, in a brief, but earnest, address, extended a hearty welcome to relatives and friends, which was responded to by Otis G. Gerould, of Covington, Pa. Dr. H. Gerould, of Cleveland, Ohio, then delivered the regular address, which consisted largely of reminiscences of the early settlers and incidents in the lives of many assembled on that occasion. The attention was also turned for a short time to the home of our ancestors, in Languedoc, France, and the persecution of the Huguenots.

The list of our dead since the last reunion is a long one. Standing at the head is the name of Margaret Beebe Gerould, who died Aug. 22, 1880, aged 81 years, 6 months, 10 days. She had attended the two former reunions. Col. W. E. Barton, the chairman of the former reunions, his wife, Emma Ann Barton, the three children of Dr. Henry and Mrs. J. C. Gerould,—Harry C., Ruth W., and Lavinia C.

—Louisa Sumner, Orpheus K. Bird, Ephraim B. Gerould, Lyman, Maria, and Edwin Mattoon, Arlette Campbell, Carl Andrus, Alice, Coss, Hattie G. Ballentine, Israel Jones, Lewis and Laura Watkins, Blanche Pierce, and Minnie Cranmer, have also died. But one of the sixteen persons constituting the heads of the eight families is now alive, viz.: Mrs. Eliza Bird Gerould, widow of Ziba Gerould. Her mind was so much impaired she was not able to meet with us on this occasion, but she is held in sacred esteem by all who know her. The long hours of the day are largely passed by her in singing the hymns learned in early life. Brief addresses were made by several persons present, interspersed by appropriate music.

At the suggestion of Dr. Gerould a permanent society was organized, and the following constitution was adopted:

ARTICLE I. CONSTITUTION.

This Society shall be known as the "Gerould Genealogical Society."

ARTICLE II. OBJECT.

SECTION 1. The object of the Society shall be to secure the genealogy and history of the descendants of Jabez and Demaris Gerould.

SEC. 2. To preserve and arrange such genealogy and history.

SEC. 3. To promote fraternal and social relations.

ARTICLE III. OFFICERS.

The officers shall consist of a President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, Historian, and Executive Committee to consist of three members of the Society.

ARTICLE IV. DUTY OF OFFICERS.

SECTION 1. The President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer shall discharge the usual duties of their respective offices.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of the Historian, aided by the Executive Committee, to appoint one person from each of the eight original families to act as family historian.

SEC. 3. It shall be his duty to direct and aid the family historians in carrying out the requirements of sections one and two.

SEC. 4. It shall also be the duty of the Historian to arrange and prepare for publication, if necessary, such genealogy and history as may come into his possession.

SEC. 5. He shall present to the Society at its regular sessions such report, unless arrangements to that end are made with the essayist.

ARTICLE V. TIME OF MEETING.

The time of holding the regular meetings shall be on the fifteenth day of September of every fifth year, unless such fifteenth day occurs on the first day of the week, when the time shall be determined by the Executive Committee.

ARTICLE VI. PLACE OF MEETING.

The reunions shall be held at East Smithfield, Bradford County, Pennsylvania.

ARTICLE VII. AMENDMENTS.

This constitution may be altered or amended at any regular meeting by a majority of those present.

The following officers were then elected :—

President, Otis G. Gerould, Covington, Tioga Co., Pa.; Vice-President, L. B. Gerould; Secretary, S. W. Gerould; Treasurer, Clayton Gerould; Executive Committee, George Ballentine, J. Gerould Rice, and A. F. Gerould; Historian, H. Gerould, M. D., of Cleveland, Ohio.

The following persons were appointed as family historians :—

The family of James, Miss Flora E. Gerould; the family of Susanna, J. Gerould Rice; the family of Ephraim B., Otis G. Gerould; the family of George, Mrs. Jane R. Ballentine; the family of Ziba, Ezra G. Wood; the family of Jabez L., H. Gerould, M. D.; the family of A. Judson, Mrs. Carrie A. Campbell; the family of Theodore, Mrs. T. G. Towner.

Contributions and pledges were then received to defray the expenses of publishing the genealogy and history of the family, after which a bountiful repast was served.

At the conclusion of the exercises in the grove, the assembly repaired to the cemetery to dedicate a beautiful monument erected to the memory of Jabez and Deniaris Gerould by their descendants. A brief address was then given by Dr. Gerould on the early life, trials and deprivations of this worthy couple, especially on the labors of Mrs. Gerould in rearing a family of eight children in the wilderness. He was followed by the Rev. C. C. Corss, who spoke of the moral and Christian character of Mrs. Gerould, her great influence in the new community, always for good. In her house the first Christian services were held, the first sermon preached, and the Lord's supper first celebrated. At her home, also, all who loved the Saviour were ever welcomed to meet for worship, and in her was found one ever ready for every good work.

APPENDIX B.

THE HUGUENOTS.

The record of a family having so distinguished an ancestry would be incomplete without a brief account of the Huguenots from whom it descended. The origin of the word Huguenot is doubtful. It was first applied by the Roman Catholics of France, as a term of reproach, to those who took part in the Reformation of the sixteenth century.

At the very commencement to the Reformation in Germany, adherents of the cause of the reformers sprang up in France, then under the government of Francis I. Under the powerful support which these reformers found in Margaret of Navarre, sister of the king, as early as 1523, Wolmer, a Swiss, preached the gospel in the south of France, and Lutheran societies, then calling themselves Gospellers, were organized. The circulation of the New Testament by the thousand still further increased the number of Reformers. In 1533, Calvin, who had been invited to Paris by the rector of the University, began to preach the new doctrines in that and other cities, and by his efforts greatly furthered the success of the Protestants. Indeed, so numerous had they become that, to exterminate their doctrine before it should spread further, the church resorted, by consent of the king, in 1545, to a massacre in Vaudois of Provence, which was accompanied by horrible barbarities. The new religion, however, made rapid progress in spite of all persecutions, and men of rank, of learning, and of arms, ranged themselves in its defence. The Roman Catholic clergy now determined to drive Henry II, then on the throne, to a more determined opposition to the movement, by assuring him that his life was threatened. The consequence was a royal edict, in 1559, declaring the crime of heresy punishable by death, and forbidding the judges to remit or mitigate the penalty. The fires of persecution, which had been smouldering, again burst forth.

The Protestants at length could endure these persecutions no longer, and resolved on open revolt. Protected by the king of Navarre, by the Condes, the Collignys, and by such Romanists as were opposed to the family then on the throne, the Huguenots formed a strong opposition. Having chosen Louis de Conde for their leader, they decided, Feb. 1, 1560, to petition the king, and if this were rejected, to put down the Guises by force of arms, and make their leader the governor of the kingdom. Through the treachery of one of their number their plan became known, and twelve hundred Huguenots were arrested and executed.

There was then a brief respite from persecution, owing to the ascension to the throne of Charles IX. He was a youth of only ten years of age. The regent was Catherine de Medicis, who was favorably disposed toward the Protestants. An edict, granting full forgiveness to the Huguenots, was issued in 1561. One of their number was made constable of France. A conference was appointed at Poissy for the purpose of conciliating both parties. It was here that Theodore Beza so signally defeated the Catholic representative in argument. The Huguenots, emboldened by their success, now adopted the Calvinistic confession, and set themselves more strongly against Romanism. Within a year a royal edict was obtained granting the Protestants liberty of worship. This exasperated the Guises, so that not long after, when twelve hundred Huguenots had met for worship, they were attacked by the Duke of Guise, and sixty of their number massacred, and more than two hundred severely wounded.

This was the match applied to the charge that was ready to explode. Catholic France rose in mass against the heretics. An army was gathered, who siezed the king, ostensibly for his safety, and then attacked and captured, with much bloodshed, first Rouen, and then Dreux, occupied by the Huguenots. The struggle continued, with no great gain on either side, until March 19, 1563, peace was concluded at Amboise, and additional privileges granted the Protestants. Both armies now united to expel the English who had just attacked them. When the regent, who had now joined the Catholics from motives of policy, thought she could dispense with the aid of the Huguenots, she began to restrict their privileges, and formed an alliance with Spain for the extirpation of heresy, and attempted to seize some of their leaders. The Protestants were aroused, and the second war with the Huguenots was begun. On the tenth of November, 1567, a battle was fought by twenty-seven hundred Huguenots against twenty thousand royal troops, and so well that the victory was undecided. The prince of Conde, who led the Huguenots, was reinforced by ten thousand Germans, which so frightened the regent that a treaty, with terms similar to those at Amboise, was granted. But it was a treaty which the Catholics would not respect. The pulpits urged that a treaty with heretics need not be kept, and the result was that within three months, three thousand Protestants had been slaughtered. Conde and Coligny they hoped to get into their hands, but, being warned, they fled to La Rochelle, one of their strongholds. Then followed a bitter war, lasting until 1570, when terms of peace, allowing liberty of worship, were again granted.

This lasted two years, when Catherine determined to crush out this hated people forever. Plans were carefully made, and the night of August 24, 1572, was appointed for a general massacre. On the morning of that day, as the great bell of the cathedral was ringing for early prayers, to open the festival of St. Bartholomew's day, a pistol shot, fired from one of the windows of the palace, called out the royal guard, who rushed into the street shouting "For God and the king," and commenced the most perfidious butchery recorded in history. The houses of the Huguenots were broken in, and all who could be found were murdered. Some five thousand Huguenots, among them the noble Coligny, were killed in Paris. The next day orders were sent to the governors of the provinces to follow the example of the capital, and in the space of sixty days no less than seventy thousand persons were murdered. Those who escaped took refuge in the mountains and at La Rochelle. Rome was in a delirium of joy. The pope and his cardinals went in procession from cathedral to cathedral to give God thanks for the massacre.

Although deprived so suddenly of their leaders, and greatly weakened by the slaughter of their best and bravest men, the Protestants began to rally in their strong places for their own defence. The duke of Anjou attacked them at La Rochelle, but was repulsed after loosing nearly his whole army. This was followed by a brief peace. For eight years after, or until 1580, there was war and then peace, between these two parties. We cannot stop to follow their varying fortunes; suffice it to say the Huguenots were persecuted and murdered, by law, and without the forms of law.

But, through a series of maneuverings, in 1589, Henry of Navarre, nominally a Protestant, became king under the title of Henry IV. Political motives, however, caused him soon to change his religion; though from the same motive he afterwards, April 15, 1598, promulgated the celebrated edict of Nantes. This consisted of ninety-one articles, and gave the Huguenots permission to worship in their own way; their ministers were to be supported by the state; they were permitted to hold office, and their poor and sick were to be admitted to the hospitals. This naturally enraged the Pope and the Jesuits, and by the latter the king was assassinated, yet his successor confirmed the edict, though its provisions were practically disregarded, until, finally, war was declared against them. In 1628, La Rochelle, their stronghold, was captured, which was the death blow to their political power. This was followed by the loss of all their other strongholds, so they were left entirely dependent on the will of their conquerers. Richelieu, a cardinal, whom Louis XIII had made the commander of his forces, having a more tolerant spirit, in some respects, than those who had preceded him, refrained from pushing his advantages, and wisely advised an edict of pardon and toleration of worship, which was granted by the king in 1629. The Huguenots, however, ceased to have any political influence, and were distinguished as a party only by their religion.

The year 1661 begins another epoch in the history of the Protestants. New edicts were published intended to damage their financial interests, and hinder them in the free exercise of their religion. They were forbidden to inter their dead except at daybreak or nightfall. Those who would adjure their faith were excused from the payment of debts previously contracted to their own number, though if any of them should afterwards go back to their old faith, they were to be banished and their property confiscated. Huguenot clerks were deprived of their employment, their marriage with Catholics forbidden, and issue from such marriages declared illegitimate and incapable of succession. In 1681 a royal decree granted the right to Huguenot children to become Catholics at seven years of age, and the kidnaping of Protestant children begun. If the parents complained they were subjected to heavy penalties. Orders were issued to pull down their places of worship, and eighty were soon destroyed in a single diocese. The Huguenots offered no resistance, but met together and prayed that the king's heart might be softened. They were forbidden to sing, or print books, or teach their children anything more than reading, writing and arithmetic. The intention apparently was to provoke them to open resistance, so as to find a pretext for a second St. Bartholomew.

Matters grew worse instead of better. Life became almost intolerable to the Protestants. All careers were closed against them. Their churches were burned, and all manner of outrages perpetrated.

Armed bodies of men went about compelling the people to abjure their religion. Thousands upon thousands, unwilling to do this, or suffer longer the indignities that had been visited upon them, fled to Switzerland, the Netherlands, England, and Germany. At last October 23, 1685, the edict of Nantes was formally revoked, although it was practically revoked years before. This enacted the demolition of all their remaining houses of worship, the entire proscription of their religion, the prohibition of even private worship and the instruction of their children in their faith, the banishment of all their ministers within fifteen days, the closing of their schools, the obligation to have their children baptized by the parish priest, and the penalty of the galleys for life to all men, and imprisonment for life to all women, detected in the attempt to escape from the kingdom.

Yet it is estimated that at least three hundred thousand did escape, and as many perished in prison, on the scaffold, or at the galleys, in their attempts to escape. Disguised in every form which ingenuity could suggest, by every outlet which could be made available, through appalling hardships, the crowd of fugitives left their once dearly loved country. Large numbers went to England, among whom, tradition says, was our revered ancestor. Others went to Holland, some of whom came to this country with the Pilgrim Fathers. One of these was Priscilla Molines,† who afterwards became the wife of John Alden. The doors of America were hospitably open, and promised them relief and privileges such as they never had enjoyed. Large numbers settled in New England, and in the Atlantic coast states. Not a little of the best blood of our country, to-day, once flowed in the veins of these persecuted Huguenots, for whom we, as a family, have reason for the profoundest reverence.
