Preface

THIS INDEX to the Grover Cleveland Papers is a direct result of the wish of the Congress and the President, as expressed by Public Law 85-147 approved August 16, 1957, and amended by Public Laws 87-263 approved September 21, 1961, and 88-299 approved April 27, 1964, to arrange, index, and microfilm the papers of the Presidents in the Library of Congress in order "to preserve their contents against destruction by war or other calamity," to make the Presidential Papers more "readily available for study and research," and to inspire informed patriotism.

Presidents whose papers are in the Library are:

George Washington	James K. Polk	Chester A. Arthur
Thomas Jefferson	Zachary Taylor	Grover Cleveland
James Madison	Franklin Pierce	Benjamin Harrison
James Monroe	Abraham Lincoln	William McKinley

Introduction

Provenance

AN account of the Grover Cleveland Papers could more easily be written if our only President to serve two nonconsecutive terms had been more interested in preserving a written record of his activities. The somewhat casual attitude he took toward his papers was expressed in a letter he wrote toward the end of his second term to Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century Magazine and a longtime friend: "I have been so prodded by public duty for a number of years past that I have had no opportunity to look after the preservation of anything that might be useful in writing history. 'Things done are won, but joy's full soul lies in the doing,' has perforce been the motto over my mantel."¹

There is abundant evidence that the President wrote many of his letters in longhand and that he did not keep copies of them. He is known to have transacted most business with Members of Congress and his Cabinet orally.² Moreover, he wrote out successive drafts of messages and addresses, proclamations and executive orders, in his neat but not easily legible hand and later scattered many of these unique manuscripts by complying with requests for autographs. Apparently no studied care was given the papers that were retained, so that now it is possible to trace only parts of the story of how and where segments of the Cleveland Papers were stored.³

Records of the first administration (1885-89) probably were placed at the disposal of Daniel Scott Lamont, who served as the President's private secretary during these years and as his Secretary of War during the second administration (1893-97). That some of the Cleveland papers were in Colonel Lamont's keeping is shown by a brief reference in a memorandum he wrote on January 16, 1893, when he noted that "The President came up from Lakewood [N.J.] this morning to complete the packing of his papers."⁴ It is possible that the material was being packed for return to the White House the following March, when Cleveland would take office for a second time, but the presence of a large body of Cleveland papers at Colonel Lamont's country house at Millbrook, N.Y., after the President's death suggests that at least a part of the material packed at that time was sent to Millbrook rather than to Washington.

It seems likely that the records of the second administration were similarly placed at the disposal of Henry T. Thurber, private secretary to the President during those years. Colonel Lamont, on being asked for an autograph of Grover Cleveland in April 1899, wrote that examples he had were in storage at the time, and he referred the correspondent to Mr. Thurber, who, he thought, "must be in a position to favor you."⁵ If, however, letter press copy books were kept for these years, as they were during the first term, they have apparently failed to survive.

There are almost no papers dating from the years he served as sheriff of Erie County, N.Y. (1871-73), as mayor of Buffalo (1882), and as Governor of New York (1883-85). Probably the existing materials for those years, and for the comparatively thinly documented years between his terms as President and during his retirement, were among papers later found in the attic of his retirement home at Princeton, N.J.

In 1912, when the Library of Congress asked Mrs. Cleveland to deposit the late President's papers in the Library, she was agreeable to the suggestion but referred the matter to Dr. John H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York. The latter had undertaken to write a biography of Grover Cleveland and for this purpose had obtained from Mrs. Cleveland an undetermined number of her husband's papers. At this time Dr. Finley was hopeful of being able to work on the biography and informed the Library he would need the papers for reference. Some 4 years later he agreed to release them temporarily;

³ Cleveland's authorized biographer states: "The papers were packed into rough wooden boxes, without systematic arrangement, the important and the unimportant thrown together; and many of the most valuable manuscripts contain neither title, date, nor other indication of the purpose for which they were prepared." Grover Cleveland: The Man and the Statesman, An Authorized Biography, by Robert M. McElroy (New York and London, 1923), II, 387.

The memorandum of which this sentence is a part is quoted and the relationship between the Lamont and the Cleveland Papers is traced in an article on "The Daniel Scott Lamont Papers," by Kate MacLean Stewart, in The Library of Congress Quarterly Journal of Current Acquisitions, XVII (February 1960), 63-83.

during the interval he had moved from New York City to Albany to become Commissioner of Education of the State of New York and had been able to make disappointingly little progress on the biography. The papers in his care, which, by his report, consisted almost entirely of letters received by the President, were sent to the Manuscript Division in 2 large packing cases in March 1915 as the deposit of the former Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland (then Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, Jr.). They were to remain closed except at the request of Mrs. Preston or her representative.

This segment of the Cleveland Papers remained in the Library for almost 5 years, during which time it was opened for examination by only 2 persons: Col. William G. Rice, who had been secretary to Cleveland in Albany and who considered collaborating with Dr. Finley on the biography (April 1919), and Professor Robert McNutt McElroy of Princeton, who succeeded Dr. Finley as the authorized biographer of Grover Cleveland (November 1919).

During his visit to the Library Dr. McElroy reported that he had already received from Mrs. Preston more papers than were included in the deposit. He was having them arranged and would use them first. Soon thereafter, however, he asked that the deposited material be sent to Princeton for his use there. He wrote (November 7, 1919): "It will be necessary . . . for me to do a good deal of collecting before I have an adequate supply of his [Cleveland's] own letters. My collection is especially weak in material on the early days before he entered national politics, and from the hasty glance I had at the papers in Washington, I am afraid they will not help me much in this regard." The deposited papers were shipped by the Library on November 19, and they were safely received by Dr. McElroy in Princeton 3 days later. There is evidence that he received in 1920-21 from Dr. John H. Finley several Cleveland scrapbooks and a box of letters and telegrams which had been stored at Cazenovia, N.Y.⁶

Dr. McElroy was probably the first person to see the whole enormous mass of Cleveland papers gathered together. In describing them in his biography he wrote: "The forty or fifty thousand miscellaneous documents, mostly letters to the President, but including the final copies of many of his presidential messages, which he brought from Washington at the end of his public life, he stored in a wing of Colonel Lamont's country house at Millbrook, New York, and apparently forgot. These, with a collection of thirty thousand manuscripts from the Library of Congress, and a smaller one from the attic of his Princeton home, constitute the bulk of manuscript sources upon which his biography has been based."⁷ The number of manuscripts treated in the recent microfilming and indexing of the Grover Cleveland Papers shown that Dr. McElroy's totals were overestimates, but the proportionate size of the categories should tell something of the segments he combined.

In his discussion of sources, Dr. McElroy told also of the vigorous and highly successful efforts by which Mrs. Preston and he were able to assemble and add to the rest of the papers a number of Cleveland's widely scattered handwritten letters. The names of persons with whom the President had corresponded regularly were noted, and these men or their heirs were asked to return the letters received from Cleveland. An estimated 1,500 letters were brought together in this way and added to the Cleveland collection, to the greater interest and value of the whole.

While the main body of Cleveland Papers was still at Princeton, the Library received a number of Cleveland letters, largely through the efforts of Mrs. Preston and Dr. McElroy but occasionally by purchase. The largest group to be received during the years 1920-23 consisted of more than 200 letters written by Cleveland to his close friend, E. C. Benedict, between 1890 and 1908. Smaller groups of letters the President wrote to A. B. Farquhar, Rear Adm. Robley D. Evans, Don M. Dickinson, and William J. Curtis were also received.

The authorized biography was published in 1923, and in October of that year Dr. McElroy notified the Library that he was ready to turn over the papers, which would be the gift of Mrs. Preston. Fifteen packing boxes were received the following month; additional small shipments were received at intervals until September 1925.⁸ This material, together with the letters mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and a few small accessions of Cleveland letters acquired since then comprise the collection reproduced on the microfilm of Grover Cleveland Papers. The total number of manuscripts in the collection is 87,027.

The principal portion of the Cleveland Papers (including many of the "collections" of Cleveland letters) was organized in 1929-31 and bound in a chronological series (series 2) in 366 volumes; a second correspondence series (series 3), composed largely of letters omitted from series 2 in 1931, has been bound in the chronologically arranged volumes 367-531; the letter press copy books (series 4) are in volumes 532-561; and 42 other containers house the remainder of the collection.

It is fortunate that certain deficiencies in the Cleveland Papers can be overcome by use within the Library of Congress of papers of a number of President Cleveland's closest friends and colleagues. Members of his Cabinet in the first administration whose papers may be consulted here are Thomas F. Bayard, Daniel Manning, Don M. Dickinson, and William C. Whitney; of his second administration, those of Walter Q. Gresham, Richard Olney, and Daniel S. Lamont.

How To Use This Index

The Cleveland Papers in the Library of Congress are indexed in this volume. These are the papers available in a Library of Congress microfilm reproduction of 164 reels. Cleveland letters in other manuscript collections in the Library of Congress or elsewhere are not indexed in this volume.

This index to the Cleveland Papers is essentially a name index listing names of writers and recipients of letters, alphabetically first and chronologically when the same name appears more than once. It is not a subject index, but annual and veto messages, inaugural addresses, and diaries are indexed under President Cleveland's name.

To find a document, note the series number and the date of the document, then turn to the date of the document in the appropriate series. Volume and page numbers are supplied when appropriate. The reel list is on page viii.

This index was produced by the use of key-punched cards; the information from the cards was sorted and printed by computer. Some paraphernalia normally found in indexes and calendars had to be abandoned. Many of the peculiarities of this index are illustrated in the sample entries which follow this explanation.

Names of writers and recipients of letters are arranged alphabetically. A letter not written by or to the President is indexed both by writer and recipient. Five letters dated 1885-86 and addressed to a nonexistent Mrs. Cleveland are indexed on page 75 as "Cleveland Mrs." Grover Cleveland and Frances Folsom were married on June 2, 1886.

Every page on which any writing appears is counted; thus envelopes, cover sheets, docket entries and endorsements, file numbers, etc., are included. Notations made by the Library of Congress are, of course, excluded.

The final or addenda column of the index has been used as a "catchall" for data which cannot be fitted into the closely calculated spacing of the main entry. Documents other than letters are, in each instance, identified in this column, occasionally by content but more often by form. When a date or name and date appear in the addenda column, an item is for some reason not in its place in the normal chronological order, for instance an enclosure filed with its covering letter rather than under its own date.
