An underground telephone station somewhere on the French front, containing also kitchen and sleeping quarters. It is entered by a passageway cut through solid rock.

Exclusive photograph, taken by official photographers of the French Army and published by special arrangement with the Minister of War.