HOTEL BELLECLAIRE
NEW YORK

Broadway at 77th St.
Surface Cars at Door
Subway at 79th St.

Only a few minutes from the Shopping and Theatrical District.

A guest of the BELLECLAIRE (a foreigner), who had not visited America since the Centennial, in 1876, was seen by the manager standing on Broadway looking up and down, as though in a quandary as to which way to go.

The manager went out on the street and asked him: "May I be of assistance to you? Where do you want to go?" He replied, in broken English, "I am looking for a sign. I want to get one of those American sodas. I had many of them when I was in the country at your Centennial celebration. I like them very much."

The manager smiled and said: "Come with me. I will show you where to get an ice cream soda which is better than the soda you drank in 1876." So they walked up Broadway to a drug store and gave their order. The manager paid the check. The foreign gentleman was very profuse in his thanks.

Now, the sequel: That foreign gentleman evidently thought it unusual for a New York hotel manager to show him a simple little courtesy. It made a profound impression on him. He told his friends abroad about it. Evidently he told many, for ever since the BELLECLAIRE has entertained hundreds of his fellow countrymen. They tell us when they register that their friend (mentioning him by name) recommended the BELLECLAIRE to them.

This incident happened two years ago. It is told to illustrate how great is the influence of a simple act of courtesy.

The BELLECLAIRE forces try to anticipate what will contribute to the comfort and pleasure of its guests.
