

How a torpedo is loaded upon a submarine. In this case, the American submersible, K 1. Photo © Central News Service.

On the Dutch-German frontier. The two guardsmen are each sate at the border line, in their own countries though only two feet apart. Photo American Press Association.

East and West meet and take lessons from one another at Saloniki, for above are shown a group of Annamese learning carpentry from British and French soldiers. Photo © Underwood & Underwood.

When the Germans took Chauny they renovated the old brewery, and put it in charge of a Bavarian soldier who knew brewing. The old Frenchman standing under the Bavarian flag was allowed to remain, as he had worked there for 25 years. Photo Warring.

A Liberty Bond fier circling the Woolworth Tower, showing what an enemy airman might do unless prevented by the extensive preparations to be paid for with the bonds. Exclusive Photo C. Curtis.