Reminiscent of old French fishing villages—hauling the boats ashore after the day's catch at Mandel Plata, Argentina, S. A. The shallow water near the shore prevents the boats being anchored overnight. © R. H. Beck.

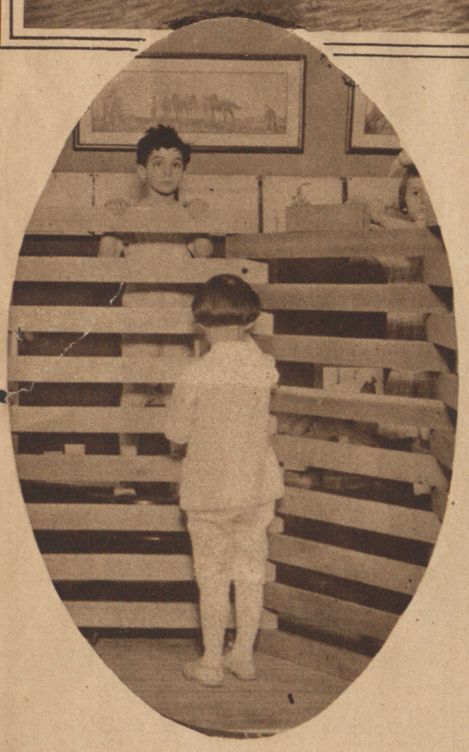
Clear Over! Sir Adam Beck's jumpers brought from Canada to be shown at the Eastern States Exposition and Dairy Show at Springfield, Mass

—and there isn't a solitary war picture on the whole page

Naturalist on a specimen-gathering expedition. He is shown in the sheephold of the schooner Antarctic, near Cape Horn, on a day when, judging from the catch, the god of hunting was propitious. R. H. Beck.

Only a small part of the damage done by the typhoon which struck Tokio early in October. Above is shown all that remains of the Museum of Chemical Industries, which stood on the banks of the historic Lake Shinobazu. Adachi Kinnosuke.

One of the longest bridges in the world—over the Amur River at Khabarovsk, Siberia, recently completed after five years of labor—nearly two miles long.



A bit of our biggest kindergarten conducted by Prof. Hill at Teachers College, Columbia Univ. Development of individuality by the work-play plan is emphasized. Gilliams Service.

Melva Beatrice Wilson, the sculptress, at work on the Mortuary Chapel, Calvary Cemetery. For eight years Miss Wilson has spent the outdoor season on this colossal work. Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. James Mitchel, our fighting Mayor's mother, snapped as she left the City Hall recently after a call on her son. J. R. Reid.