The Enemy Goes Blind!

By Lieutenant Henri Farré
Observateur-Bombardier au Premier Groupe d'Escadrille de Bombardment

French air hunters invading the enemy's territory at the peak of the German attack on Verdun, in May, 1916, on the heights across the Meuse, make their first test, and a successful one, of a new fuse designed by Lieutenant de Vaisseau Le Prieur for the destruction of observation balloons.