

President Wilson pitches out the first ball at a Labor Day baseball game in Washington at the American League grounds played for the benefit of the Capital's policemen. Mrs. Wilson, Admiral Grayson and John Randolph Bolling, the President's brother-in-law, are interested spectators in the Chief Executive's box.

Underwood.

Left—"Papa" Foch out of uniform and on a vacation—the first in years. A new photograph of the Allied Commander in Chief, taken at his Brittany estate.

International.

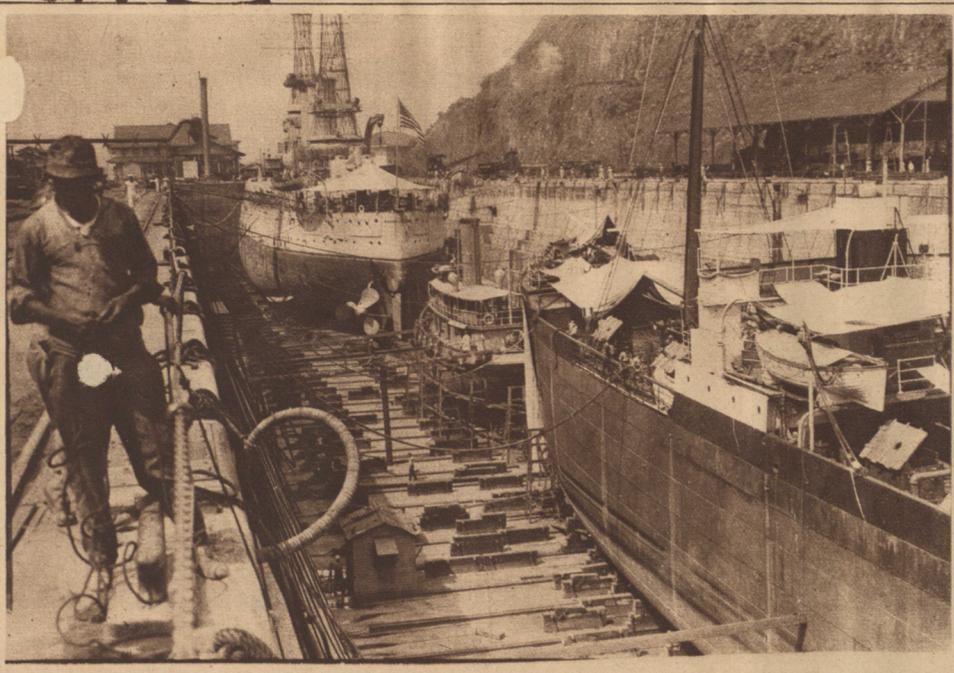

A hitherto unpublished photograph of General Pershing in the high-powered limousine that safely transported him thousands of miles over French roads.

Arnold Austin.

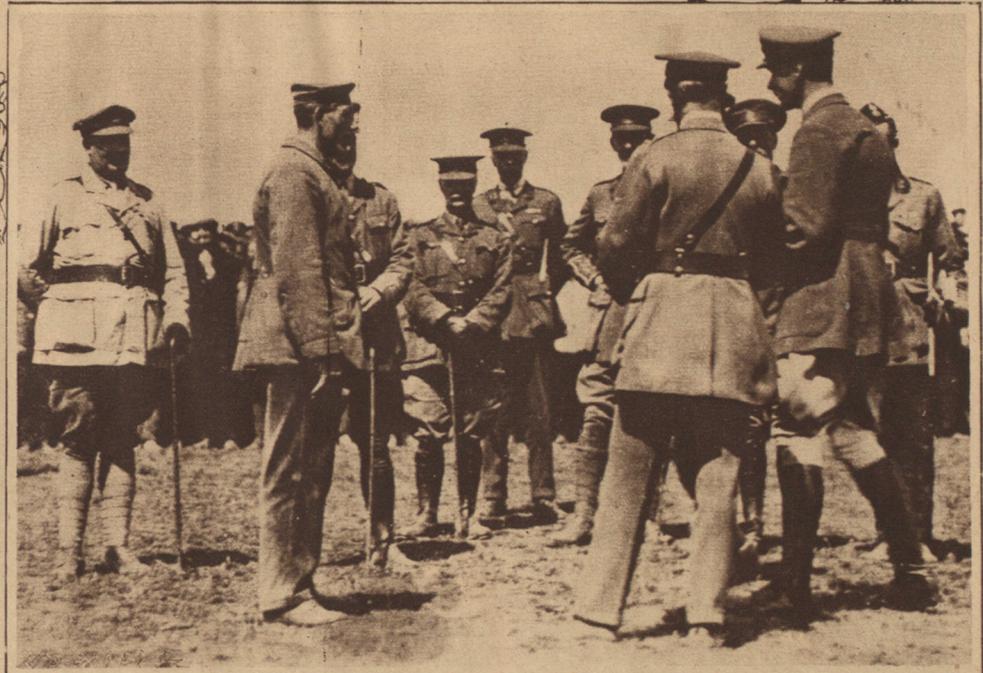

Right—Lord French, of Ypres fame and present Viceroy of Ireland, taking a salute at the Belfast Peace Celebration—the greatest day the city has ever known.

Keystone View.

The U. S. S. Rhode Island, a small excursion boat and a large seagoing freighter all undergoing repairs at the same time in the world's largest drydock at Balboa, Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal. The Rhode Island broke her shaft some 600 miles beyond the canal while en route to San Diego, Cal., and was towed back for repairs by the U. S. S. North Carolina.

Underwood.

A striking example of British sportsmanship. A purse of money and a suitably inscribed watch are presented to a German private by British officers. The German was a prisoner at an English aerodrome when a British plane crashed and caught fire. The prisoner at great personal risk rescued the pilot from the burning wreckage. After the presentation he was released and granted a free passage home.

Underwood.