

President Poincaré of France bestows the Légion of Honor and Croix de Guerre on the city of Nancy. To President Poincaré's right is M. Simon, Mayor of the city. At the left is the embroidered cushion which represents the decoration. Underwood

Paul Schwandt, a well known German aviator, recently established a world's record with a new type of aeroplane, carrying eight passengers to a height of over 18,000 feet. Here is a picture of the pilot and his passengers in the roomy fuselage taken just before the ascent. Central News

Prepare to shed tears, all ye who gaze on this particular picture. What wouldn't you give for a similar cellarful? Each of these great casks contains rum delivered to the British War Office too late for use in the war. Four million gallons of it are stored in the warehouses on London docks.

A brand new picture of Ole Hanson, former Mayor of Seattle, who made a stirring speech on "Bolshevism vs. Americanism" at Carnegie Hall last Monday night, in which he laid the coal and steel strikes to the "reds." Van der Weide

Left—Former commander of New York's 27th Division, Major General John F. O'Ryan, at his desk as a volunteer worker in the service of the Red Cross for the third rolloccall. Padernand

Right—A remarkable action photo picturing the thrill of bronco busting as demonstrated at a recent bucking horse riding championship at Los Angeles. The rider was thrown shortly after this picture was taken and severely injured. Gilliam

The camera man catches an amusing incident during the Prince of Wales' recent visit to Farnham, Canada. Three lassies make a rush to kiss the Prince, but are blocked in their attempt by his naval escort, Admiral Halsey. While the admiral appears greatly perturbed, the Prince takes the affair good-naturedly. Central News

A foolish but daring endurance stunt successfully accomplished by one of Uncle Sam's former sailors. Tony Pizzo arrives in New York, having ridden all the way from Venice Beach, California, handcuffed every minute of the long journey to his bicycle. An accident crossing the Great American Desert, in which he broke his shoulder-blade, didn't prevent him "carrying on" and winning the wager which instigated the trip. Press Illustrating

Ella Wheeler Wilcox, one of the country's most beloved poets and authors, who recently died at her home, The Bungalow, at Short Beach, Conn., following an illness contracted in France, where she did splendid relief work. International

When the Prince of Wales recently visited Niagara Falls he pushed an electric button and for the first time in history the Horseshoe Falls were brilliantly illuminated. Here's a night picture showing the mighty cataract gleaming in the rays of hundreds of powerful spotlights. Wide World

Right—Eleanor Hopwood, "the woman who fed England." She was called upon to act as food administrator during the recent railroad strike, on which occasion she proved most capable. Press Illustrating