

The following is an Extract from Theodore Dwight's Oration, delivered before the Society of Cincinnati, at its state, at New-Haven, on the 7th of July last. Hadon, by Dwight's conversion, says, that it is a season with his own paper. [New-Haven Post.]

"We have now reached the consummation of Demagogic blind-fidelity. We have a country governed by blockheads, and knaves; the ties of marriage with all its felicities, are severed and destroyed; our wives, and our daughters are sold into the hands of the lowest and most mercenary of the world from the breast, and forgotten filial piety is extinguished; and our fortunes, the only mark of distinction among families, are abolished. Can the imagination paint any thing more dreadful than this? He! No! None parts of the subject are, indeed, it only for heral contemplation. But let me point out to you the progress of a being through the knowledge of wisdom. The offspring of a knave, not whom; indeed of feeding on the nectar of his mother's bosom call out a vengeance among contemporaries, with herat and with admiring and glory. The youth of Greenland, to pick up a miserable support in a world where Charity lets not a crumb fall from her table; trained up without a filial, or fraternal sentiment; and beloved by no human being; ignorant of himself, and ignorant of his God; in sickness friendless, in death deserted. What, can such a state of society breed but vice; what can it end in but ruin?"

"From the situation of an individual, extend your thoughts to a nation; and from a nation to the world. View for a moment, millions of half-wild, ignorant, and lawless creatures. Think of a world full of ignorance, impurity, and guilt; without justice, without science, without affection, without conjugal felicity, without parental love, without filial piety, without brotherly sympathy, without a prayer, without a God! What can support the human mind in the hour of distress, in a world like this? Instead of the consolations of faith, we should find the manifold afflictions of the multitude of the fortune and religion of Christianity, we should see—

"... sitting his interdicted wife,
Gren Soliste, the damned fide of hell, in the arms of the scientist, who deceives and gratifies, we should hear "weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth." Is there a charm in this? Can even a comatolope find a ray of comfort here?"

BERNE, May 25.
We have been assured that there has been referred to the Executive Council a second plan of Constitution, upon the same principles as the first, but with several important alterations, and much more detailed. The following are the essential parts.

The Helvetic Republic shall be composed of seventeen Cantons, which shall each have, according to its territorial extent and its means, an interior administrative organization, calculated upon its wealth, in relation, however, with the central government, for all the objects which are to determine the political force of the Republic.
2. The Helvetic Republic shall have a central government composed of the chief of 20 members, to meet in a Diet for two months in the year—a permanent Council of State, of 25 members—a Council of Regency, of five members, invested with executive power; of a high court of justice.
3. Appointments. The members of the Diet shall be paid by their constituents according to their will. Those of the council of State shall each have 6000 francs; those of the Council of Regency shall have; the regent Landname 30,000 francs; the 21 Landname 10,000—the other 20 Statholders, 6000 francs each; the three Ministers, each 4000.

The elector of districts, conjointly with the national prefect and the administrative chambers, exercise the prerogative to elect, and determine the interior administration of their Cantons. There shall be prescribed to the municipalities a maximum of property upon they shall decide their choice.
