

The 27th, State and
and Victorious, Mar
Lanes of Unnumbere

HUNDREDS OF SPECTATORS
Saw the Parade
from Treetops Along
Fifth Avenue.
(Edwin Levick.)

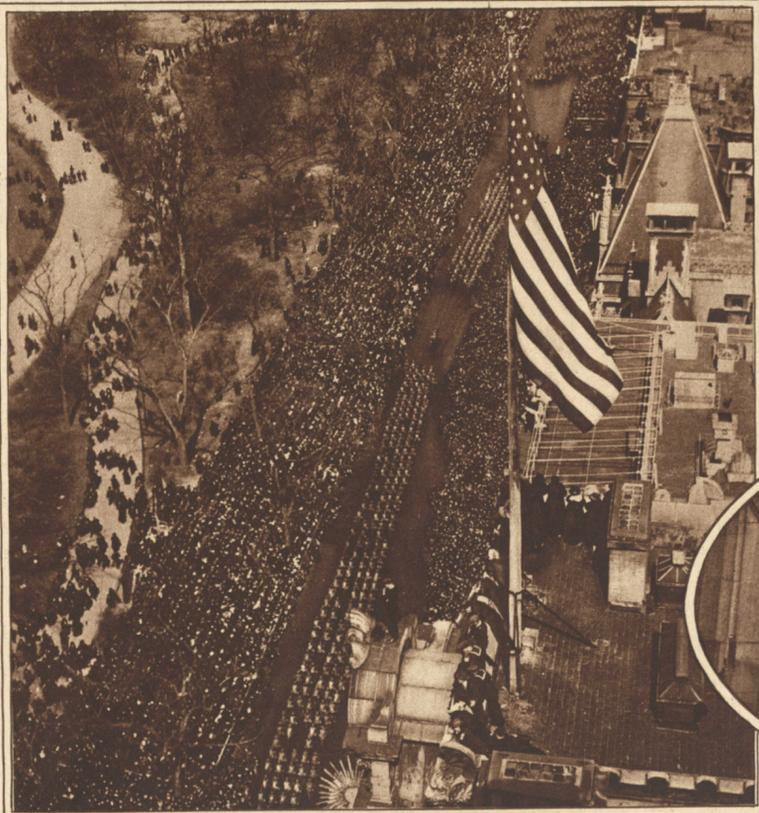

THE 102D FIELD BATTALION PASSING THE OFFICIAL REVIEWING STAND AT EIGHTY-SIXTH STREET AND FIFTH AVENUE, with, in the Foreground, the West Point Corps of Cadets Acting as a Guard of Honor for the Reviewers.
(Times Photo Service.)

SERGEANT REIDAR WALLER,
105th Machine Gun Battalion, Winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor and the British Distinguished Service Medal, Cutting the Silken Rope in Front of the Arch of Victory to Permit the Passage of the Parade. Immediately Behind Can Be Seen General O'Ryan and His Staff.
(International Film Service.)

CANTEEN WORKERS OF THE
MAYOR'S COMMITTEE OF WELCOME
GREETING THE HOMECOMING VICTORS
FROM THE PUBLIC LIBRARY RAILING.
(© Underwood & Underwood.)

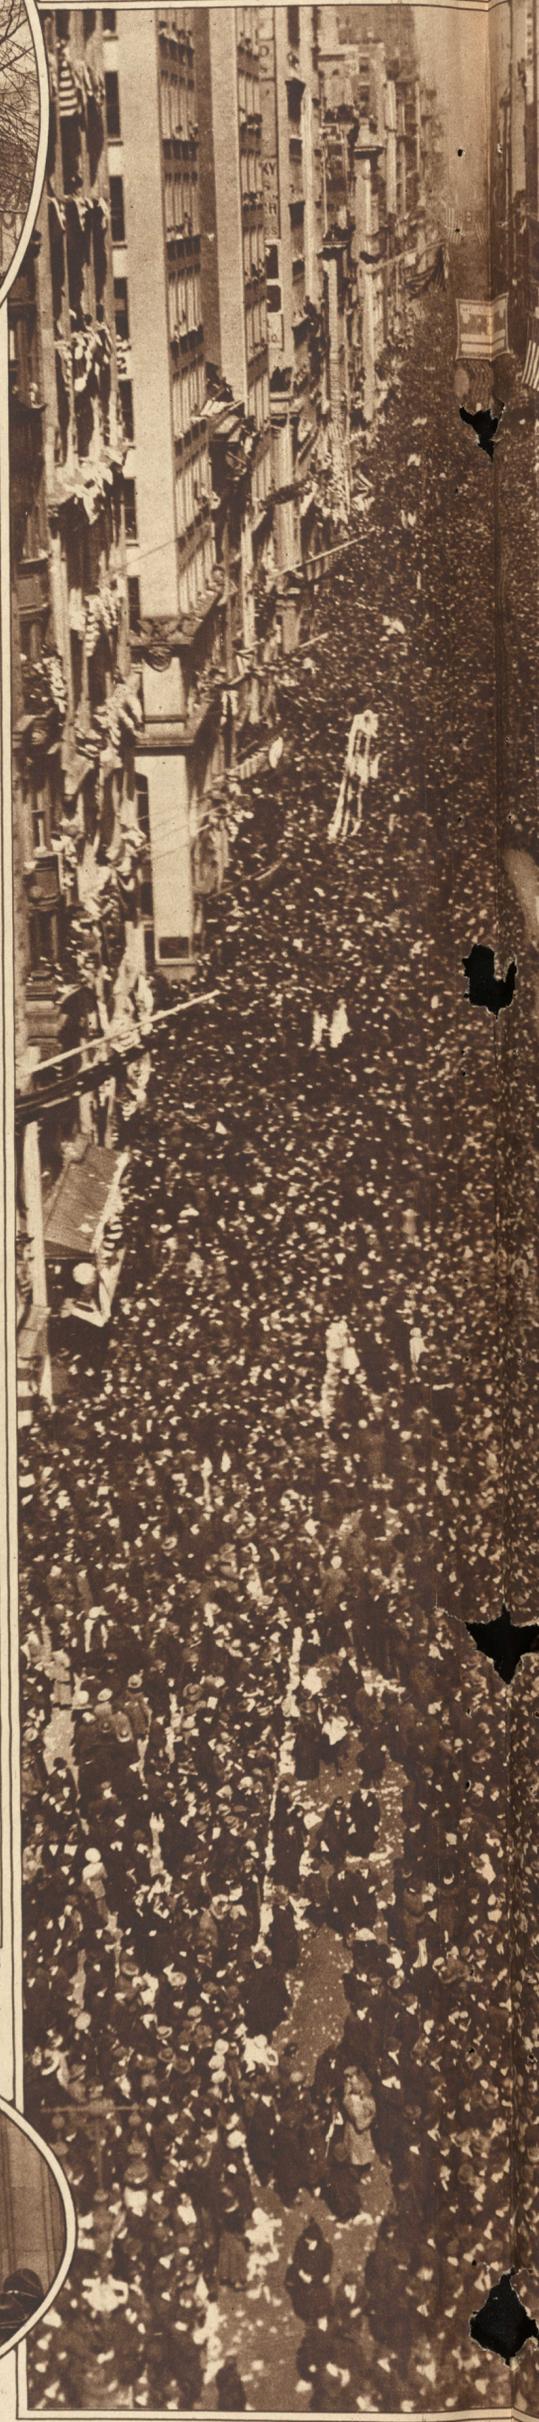

A SECTION OF THE CROWDED GRAND STAND,
Extending in Unbroken Line from Sixtieth to 110th Streets, a Distance of Two and a Half Miles.
(© Underwood & Underwood.)

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS NOT IN THE PARADE DIVING INTO THE AVENUE FOR TOBACCO, CIGARETTES, AND COINS THROWN TO THEM BY THE WAITING CROWDS.
(Edwin Levick.)

GUESTS OF MRS. VINCENT ASTOR VIEWING THE PARADE
from a Stand Erected in Front of Her House on Upper Fifth Avenue. Mrs. Astor
Can Be Seen Entering the Stand.
(International Film Service.)

FIFTH AVENUE, CHOKED WITH PEOPLE AS NEVER BEFORE, SMASHED THE PARADE
A View of the Avenue When the Parade Was at Its Height.
(© International Film Service.)