

Will They Hold Their Jobs After Next March? The first photograph made of President Wilson's Cabinet since the appointment of ex-Attorney General McReynolds to the Supreme Court and the resignation of Secretary of State Bryan and Secretary of War Garrison. Seated at the head of the table is President Wilson. On the right of the table as you look at the picture is Secretary of State Lansing, next, Secretary of War Baker, Postmaster General Burleson, Secretary of the Interior Lane and Secretary of Commerce Redfield; in the rear of the table is Secretary of Labor Wilson, seated on the left of President Wilson are Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Attorney General Gregory, Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of Agriculture Houston.

© G. V. Buck from Underwood & Underwood.

Candidates for the First Gentleman and the First Lady in the Land—Justice Charles E. Hughes (before he was a Presidential nominee) and Mrs. Hughes at the graduation exercises of the National Cathedral Girls' School, Washington, D. C.

© G. V. Buck from Underwood & Underwood.

WILL HE EXCHANGE THIS FOR THE WHITE HOUSE?—In this Washington residence Justice Hughes, of the U. S. Supreme Court, studied over and wrote many of his opinions. From now until next November the eyes of the United States will be turned toward it. It is situated in Sixteenth Street in one of the most fashionable sections.

© G. V. Buck from Underwood & Underwood.

"America First and Undivided Allegiance to the Flag"—The scene at the graduation exercises of the National Cathedral Girls' School, when Justice Hughes, in the words quoted, made his first public utterance on the questions of the day.

© G. V. Buck from Underwood & Underwood.

