During the early victorious stages of the German drive, the people of Berlin were allowed daily cheer-periods, in which they assembled and applauded some member of the Hohenzollern family. The Kaiser and the Crown Prince being at the approximate front, the Kaiserin and the eldest son of the Crown Prince (the boy in a sailor suit) are here shown receiving homage for the family and Gott. Theo. Mounaut.

HOW THE BIG FELLOWS WATCH THE BATTLE

Above—General von Heeringen prefers to watch from the security of a trench, where he and his staff may stand and peek thru trench periscopes.
French Pictorial Service.

Below—When President Poincaré visits the front, an elevated shelter is built from which he may watch the operations. In the foreground are Generals Pétain and Fayolle, and M. Painleve.
Press Illustrating.

Bairnsfather's "Old Bill" and a van load of other dust-covered Tommies returning from a day's work.
British Official Undercood.