

HAIRDRESSING
BY A
STOP-WATCH

In Japan there is a yearly hairdressing contest, open to professional hairdressers from all over the country. It is held in a theatre in Tokio and, as is shown in the picture at the right, is witnessed by hundreds of sport enthusiasts.

The award is made for greatest speed combined with the most artistic arrangement and finish. The patients whose job seems to be simply to sit still and hold their heads up, can hardly expect to survive the Anti-Loafing law when such is put into effect in Japan.

Photographs from Adachi.

The Kaiser last month graciously bestowed "independence" on Lithuania. These pictures have come direct from Holzminden, Germany, and show groups of Lithuanian children, in a war prisoners' camp, absolutely free except for the barbed wire fence in the background (in the top picture) and (below), learning from German teachers what a good German Shakespeare was.

Otis F. Wood, Inc.

The movies in Morocco are extremely intimate. You give the operator your money, squat down, and peek through a hole in the box, while he turns the crank. In this way you are never bothered by people crowding in front of you during a picture or reading the captions aloud.

French Pictorial Service.

Another German military coup. Throngs of children forced to leave Paris to escape air raids.

Kadel & Herbert.

Alert! Gas masks for onion attack.

Hain News Service.