

"TO HELL WITH THE KAISER"
The latest and loudest word in patriotic films, putting the Hohenzollerns irrevocably in their place.

Screen Classics, Inc.

Here we see the Kaiser (played, in spite of his family's protests, by Lawrence Grant) behaving just as you would expect him to behave with the American flag and a map of Europe. The civilized diplomats seem surprised, but it is an old story to the General Staff and von Bethmann-Hollweg in the background.

If proof of Germany's aims were needed, here it is. The Kaiser is caught in the act of pointing out the Equator to the Crown Prince. The latter, who was not a very bright boy in school, says that it is all news to him.

And as for von Tirpitz, you could tell to look at him that he is a mean old guy.

The dénouement is exactly as it should be. General Pershing is here shown about to jam the Kaiser's helmet over his ears prior to having him locked up for disorderly conduct. The young woman at the right (Miss Olive Tell) has just put the Crown Prince out of the way; so things are looking pretty bright for Democracy.

The Concert at Home Tonight

"Thank you for thinking of us, but we are so comfortable here while this storm rages outside that you couldn't persuade us to leave home.

"Beside, there is no need of taking the long trip to town to hear the concert. Godowsky is playing for us right now through our Ampico! Playing as perfectly as he will play in Carnegie tonight.

"Come up and join us. You'll hear not only one artist but a score—and what a programme! Ornstein, Carreno, Goodson, Busoni—the greatest of the great.

"Good, you're coming. We'll have the finest concert right here at home. Bring the young people with you and we'll have some dancing afterward. Our Ampico never tires, nor do we tire of the Ampico. We'll expect you within half an hour. Good-bye."

IN your own home, you may have just such an evening as this. Music for you, your family and your friends, such as it would cost thousands of dollars to duplicate on the concert stage. Whenever, and as often as you wish, the Ampico will reproduce the playing of the great artists. To your home life the Ampico adds the perfecting touch of exquisite music.
