
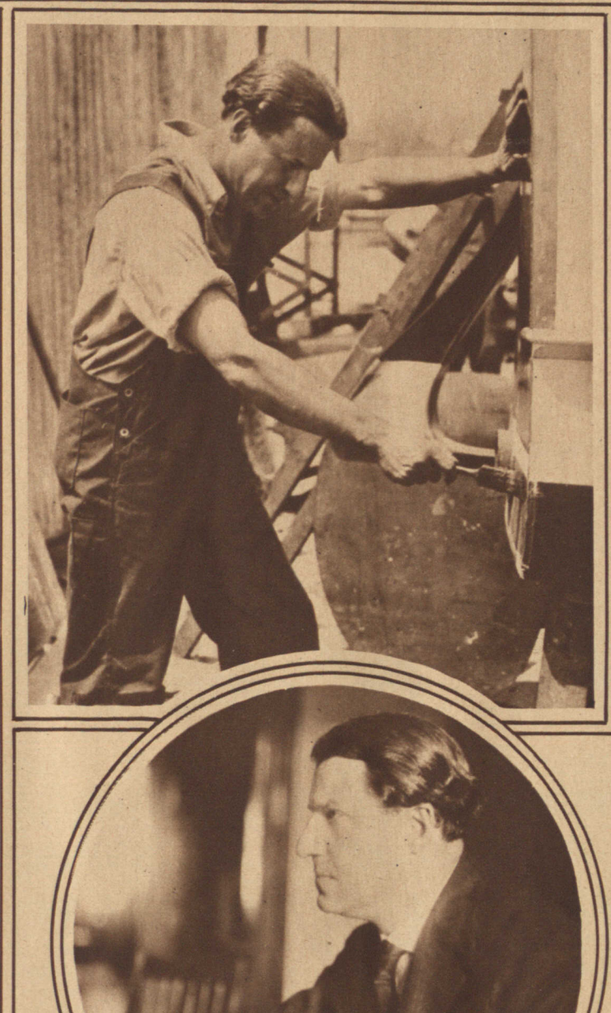
The explosion of a big shell in No Man's Land between the Italian and Austrian lines.
Gilliams Service.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise is spending his vacation as a day laborer in a shipbuilding plant at Stamford, Conn. He is getting three dollars per. The young mechanic at his side is his eighteen-year-old son, James, also helping win the war.
Underwood—International—Press Illustrating



In the war stricken area of France. Although his house has been demolished by shell fire, and the entire front of his shop torn away, this poor old man still hopefully waits for customers.
Associated Illust. Agencies, Ltd.

British and French cavalrymen resting together during a lull on the Western front.
Associated Illust. Agencies, Ltd.

The war has stimulated American interest in cricket. This pictures a game played between the British War Mission and an eleven from local clubs at the Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club, Livingston.
Western Newspaper Union.