

Versailles is the real centre of the universe just now. This picture shows the entrance to the palace on a Sunday afternoon, when Paris crowds avail themselves of a rare privilege. Paul Thompson

The Wilson smile, which has captured the heart of France. Tribune Graphic Service

President and Mrs. Wilson disembarking at Brest. They are shown just stepping upon French soil. Underwood & Underwood

(Above) When President Wilson steps out of his Paris White House this is the garden he enters. Bain News Service

(Right) The Hotel de Ville, where Mr. Wilson was officially welcomed to the French capital.

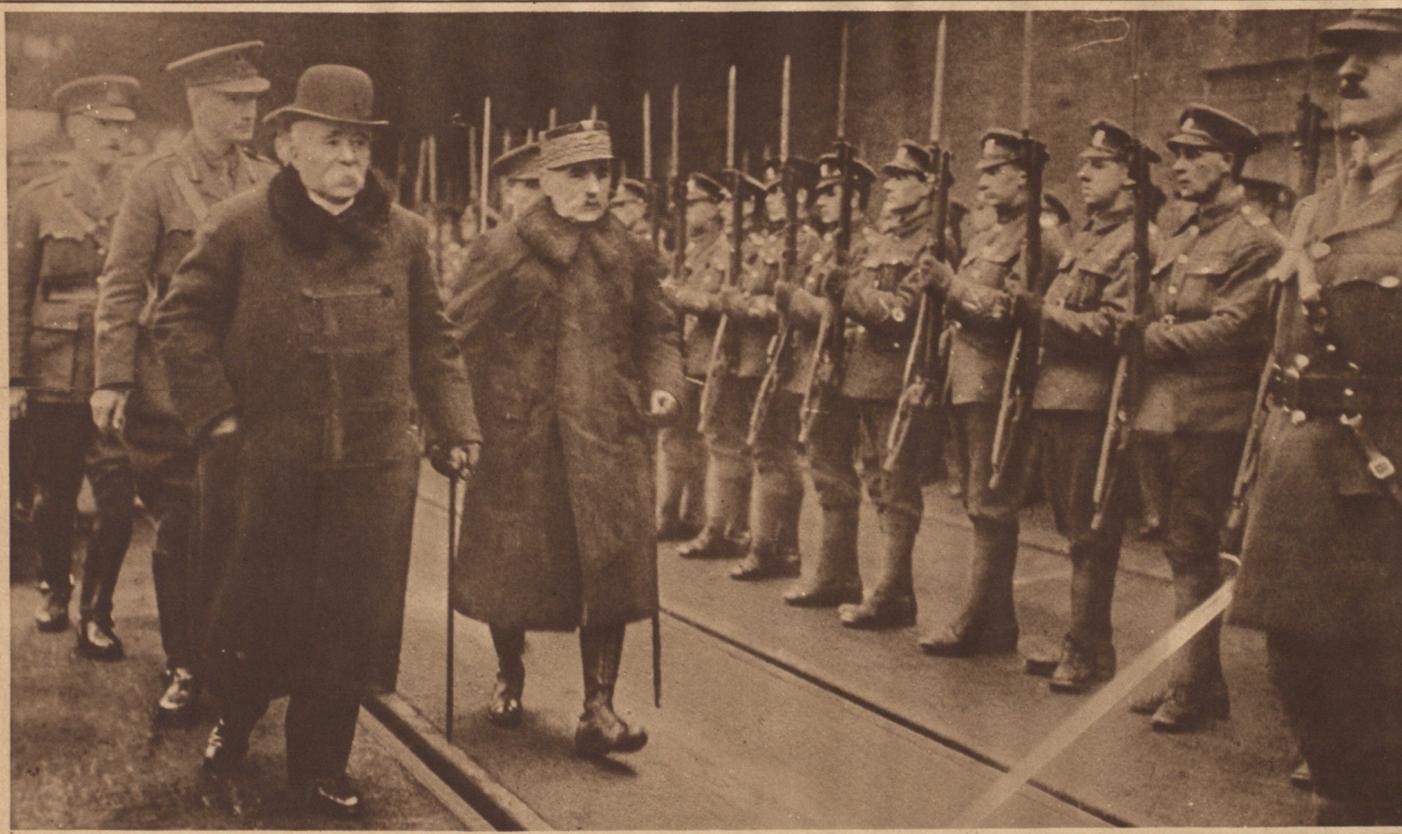

The President and his party leaving the George Washington at Brest. It was Mr. Wilson's "lucky day," Friday, the thirteenth. Underwood & Underwood

George W. Wickersham, one of The Tribune's representatives at the Peace Conference. Tribune Graphic Service

(Above) Mrs. William Thaw II, who participated in the Carnaval de Victoire last night at the Ritz. Marion Sillor

Marshal Foch and M. Clemenceau inspecting the Guard of Honor which was assembled to meet them on their arrival at Dover. Central News Service

(Right) This is a happy Christmas season for King George. Central News Service