

General John J. Pershing invests distinguished British officers with United States decorations in Hyde Park, London, preparatory to the great Victory Parade, in which he led the American doughboys. To the right are Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, commander in chief of the British armies, and our Ambassador to Great Britain, Hon. John W. Davis. Central News.

To the left—A brand new photograph of King George of England who, next to his son, the Prince of Wales, is probably the most photographed man in the world to-day. Note the latest British fashion in neckwear. Central News.

A silhouette of England's King, Queen, the Prince of Wales, Premier Lloyd George and other notables saluting our color bearers as the American division marches up the gayly decorated Mall in London's great Victory Parade, in which marched 18,000 troops of the Allied armies that defeated Germany. Central News.

To the right—Master Warren Pershing, General Pershing's little son, a participant in London's great victory celebration. He wears the regulation U. S. uniform with war ribbons of the Montenegro medal, the American medal and the Philippine War medal. Central News.

Looking down the Mall from the roof of Buckingham Palace as the American Division approached the royal reviewing stand in the greatest of London's victory parades. Western Newspaper Union.

Right—The sword of honor presented to General Pershing by Great Britain. On one side is the figure of Britannia, on the other Liberty. The centre band carries the names of the wars in which General Pershing participated. Below the American Coat of Arms appears his monogram in diamonds and rubies. Central News.

A few of our new Pacific Fleet's contingent of 108 1,400-ton flush-deck type destroyers, built after the U. S. went into the war, lying three abreast in the Gatun Locks of the Panama Canal, en route to California from Hampton Roads on their recent historic and dramatic trip. The Pacific Fleet comprises some 175 fighting ships and nearly 36,000 men are required to officer and man the gigantic armada. Wide World.